Hitler and French Premier May Meet

PLOT AGAINST MUSCLE SHOALS PLAN PROBED

Today

Hitler Through the Ether. Homes, Tax-Exempt. England Interprets It. $3,300,000,000 Cash, or Bonds.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

HITLER, THROUGH the ether, has told the world what he and Germany want. He indorses what President Roosevelt says about peace, wants to see all nations reconciled "but only on a basis of equality." Those are the last words of his speech.

He warns other countries that "red chaos" would follow the outbreak of war in Europe, and warns the Allies, especially France, that Germany would fight any attempt to "impose sanctions" which would mean again marching troops into German territory.

He says:

"No new European war could possibly better in any way the unsatisfactory conditions of today."

If Hitler means that, and if other European nations have common sense, there will be no war for the present.

YESTERDAY THE Florida Senate passed a resolution for a constitutional amendment exempting homesteads from all taxation up to $5,000.

The amendment goes to the people of Florida at the next general election. Representative Dwight L. Rogers sponsored the resolution, now passed by both houses. Congratulations to Florida.

GRAVEYARDS ARE tax exempt, churches and dozens of other institutions are tax exempt, as they should be.

If the founder of Christianity should return, would he not demand first of all freedom from taxation for the homes in which poor people rear and train their children?

"INASMUCH AS YE HAVE DONE IT UNTO ONE OF THE LEAST OF THESE, MY BRETHREN, YE HAVE DONE IT UNTO ME."

ENGLAND READS in President Roosevelt's message the threat of "preventive war held over European nations by the United States in case one nation should unjustifiably attack another."

Our British friends also, naturally, assume that if some European nation should attack another unjustly, President Roosevelt would have the United States apply "preventive war," sending more American men and millions of dollars to attend to the matter.

President Roosevelt will explain that this is not his plan.

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, reading President Roosevelt's peace appeal to fifty-four nations, exclaims:

"There goes your isolation forever."

Dr. Butler, advocate of United States entrance into the League of Nations, perhaps mistakes President Roosevelt's meaning.

If "there goes your isolation forever," be true, then you may add:

"There go George Washington's warnings and teachings forever."

A BILL to spend thirty-three hundred million dollars on public works to help unemployment is sent to Congress by President Roosevelt.

How will that money be raised? Will financiers be implored to lend it to Uncle Sam at high interest rates? Or will the government pay for the work with its new money, which it can do perfectly well, and avoid loading $132,000,000 a year interest on the taxpayers?

Why not pay for the work with new dollars and retire them as these "self liquidating" public works supply the cash?

This country is off the gold basis, why not get off the NONSENSE basis of going through the motions of borrowing and paying interest?

Some will call that "financial heresy," but what of it?

A NAVAL board of inquiry finds an error on the part of the commander of the Akron partly responsible for the airship's loss.

Perhaps President Roosevelt, as commander-in-chief of the Navy, will change the antiquated rule that compels an airship commander as soon as he has learned something about airships to change to a floating ship and do a certain amount of "sea duty."

To continue a rule that classes command of an airship with "shore duty" is a little too stupid. When a man has learned how to command a ship in the air, he should stay IN THE AIR.

WALL STREET'S sweetest words are these,

"Ticker nine minutes late."

Of course "ticker one hour late" would be sweeter, but "nine minutes" will do.

A late ticker means that brokers are selling and buying shares so rapidly that the electric ticker cannot keep up. It sounds like good old days of 1929 with "call money" at from fifteen to twenty per cent, stock exchange seats climbing up toward $1,000,000 each, the sky the limit.

Geese that have feathers, lambs that have wool left, will now come back. Some will get complete new coats of feathers or wool. Some will not.

AUBURN, N. Y., tells women who teach in public schools that if they marry during the school year their contracts will be cancelled. Married teachers with husbands "gainfully employed" are asked to resign.

Somebody should take that ruling to the Supreme Court. The country needs as many INTELLIGENT children as possible, and forbidding women teachers to marry is to interfere with the supply of intelligent children.

RACKET FOE WARNED TO 'LAY OFF'

Business Bureau Head Issues Defi After Phone Threats

Expressing the conviction there is in Pittsburgh an underworld business racket situation similar to Chicago's, Capt. Reuel W. Elton, manager of the Better Business Bureau, today defied racketeers who have threatened violence unless he ceases operations.

Elton's defi came in answer to telephoned threats directed against the bureau.

The latest came today, from an anonymous source. Elton quoted the voice as saying:

"You fire Dennison today. There won't be any more warnings."

CAUSED ARRESTS

G. F. Dennison is employed by the bureau on fraud investigations. He has been responsible for several recent arrests of petty racketeers.

Dennison, himself, has been threatened, Elton said. One man told him, according to the report, that:

"You're going too far. These birds are having a tough time earning a living and they don't like your interference."

Elton's statement today read:

"The Better Business Bureau will continue to operate. Mr. Dennison will continue in its employ.

"Threats don't interest us. We have had many of them.

BLAMES UNDERWORLD

"I am confident that their actual origin is in the underworld organization known to businessmen as the 'Forty Thieves.' Our investigation of their activities is getting constantly nearer the heart of their operations.

"I have reason to believe that their activities have extended, on occasion, as far as hi-jacking merchandize in transportion.

"I have it on reliable authority from men who have associated with their ring at times, that, backed by millions, they will not hesitate at violence.

"I can only say that the Better Business Bureau will not be intimidated by violence."

WASHINGTON, May 18.—With administration leaders promising passage of President Roosevelt's program of industry control and public works within 10 days, the House Ways and Means Committee today opened hearings on the measure.

FOUR TAX PLANS

1—Increase the normal rates on incomes from 4 to 6 per cent on the first $4,000, and from 8 to 10 per cent on the next $10,000; make corporation dividends subject to normal tax; impose an additional ¾ of 1 per cent on gasoline.

MITCHELL HELD 'POOR MARTYR'

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The deflation of Charles E. Mitchell from multi-millionaire to a penniless defendant was reflected today at the trial of the former chairman of the National City Bank, charged with income tax evasion.

Wall street's "first bull," as Mitchell was called in the balmy golden pre-crash days, never lost confidence in the ability of the market to rebound after those dark October days of 1929, according to the testimony to date.

In addition, he proved a martyr to the loyal cause of "pegging" the price of National City Bank stock when the bottom fell out in October, 1929, defense counsel maintained.

As a result, Mitchell, worth from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 in 1929, today is "stripped," said defense counsel.

FRENCH HEAD MAY MEET HITLER

Friends Ask Daladier To Confer With Chancellor

PARIS, May 18.—(AP.)—Premier Daladier, of France, and Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, may meet face to face at Geneva to talk over their troubles, friends of the Premier indicated today.

Officially the plan was without confirmation, but close associates of the Premier said that it was being discussed and that they were urging it as the best means of clearing the atmosphere.

M. Daladier, his friends said, is fully aware that France was put somewhat on the defensive by Chancellor Hitler's reply accepting President Roosevelt's disarmament proposals.

FRANCE SKEPTICAL

French skepticism of the Chancellor's good faith has been reflected in all ranks of officialdom, press and public.

One commentator said:

"Yesterday Germany was regarded as a peril. Dare any one suppose today that it is France and her allies who are troubling peace?"

A sharp internal fight to determine the French attitude at Geneva is likely as the Nationalist elements in the Chamber of Deputies, such as former Premier Andre Tardieu, already are sounding a warning against weakening the army despite the "words" of Chancellor Hitler.

The Nationalists take the view that the army should remain unimpaired until definite assurances of security have been obtained from the United States.

Premier Daladier will be able better to fix his course after the Moffett Field will be the Navy's only operating station devoted exclusively to lighter-than-air. The airship Macon will be sent to Moffett Field on completion of its tests.

Strike Front Extends Over 250 Miles; 200 Arrested

International News Service.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 18.—With violence, disorder and bloodshed growing hourly along the 250-mile milk strike front, authorities today mobilized more than half of Wisconsin's National Guardsmen with full military equipment for duty in the rebellion zones.

As the milk strike went into the sixth day today authorities characterized the increasing disorders as "organized rebellion."

Following two large scale battles in which militiamen and deputies fought striking members of the Wisconsin Co-operative Milk Pool with tear gas and clubs, Gov. A. G. Schmedeman telegraphed the following order to Sheriffs in 18 counties:

"Arrest all persons actively engaged in dumping milk. Vigorous enforcement of civil and criminal law is demanded by the state."

Two hundrd strikers and sympathizers were taken prisoners and scores of guardsmen and deputies were injured, several seriously, in Northern Shawano and Milwaukee counties as massed picketers tried to halt milk shipments, precipitating sharp fighting.

800 SUBPENAED IN VOTE QUIZ

The sweeping nature of the government's probe of alleged Congressional election frauds became apparent today as it was disclosed that between 800 and 1,000 subpenas for witnesses were being sent out.

Members of all election boards in the Thirteenth and Thirty-second Congressional districts at the November election, as well as hundreds of political workers and voters, it was reported, are to be summoned to testify before the federal grand jury. The investigation will open June 12.

Government attorneys, engaged in preparing the subpenas, would not discuss their plans or the number to be summoned.

A grand jury probe was ordered after government agents had investigated election activities in the two districts. Attorney Earl F. Reed was named special prosecutor.

F. R. Hints Connivance To Discredit U. S. Operation

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—President Roosevelt is launching an inquiry into charges that high army officials connived with private power companies to discredit government operation of the Muscle Shoals power plant.

The investigation will be started within two weeks, administration leaders on Capitol Hill were advised today. It was authorized under an amendment to the Norris Tennessee Valley development bill approved by Congress.

The President already has before him data gathered in a preliminary investigation made at the request of Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska.

The data involved the Alabama Power Company and the Tennessee Electric Power Company, along with army engineering officials, in a web of circumstances which were held to justify a thorough investigation.

Other power companies affiliated directly and indirectly with these two concerns will be investigated.

The President has directed the Department of Justice to deal with the case.

The inquiry will follow two broad general lines. The first involves charges that the two power companies were granted special privileges through construction and maintenance contracts approved by the War Department.

The second concerns a conspirspiracy charged to exist between the "power trust" and responsible Army officiels to discredit government operation of the $140,000,000 war-time plant.

The President approved an exhaustive airing of the Muscle Shoals affair only after he had made a preliminary investigation on his own initiative.

Late today the President expects to sign the Tennessee Valley improvement legislation, which gives the government complete control over the operations of the giant Muscle Shoals plants.

County Officials Baffled By Vague Beer Bill

The beer control law that is to provide new revenues after May 31, produced a headache in the County Treasurer's office today.

There are provisions that need clarifying, and it seemed it will be left to officials of each county to interpret for themselves those provisions in issuing licenses.

Beer dealers who desire to sell the beverage after May 31 filed applications for licenses at the County Treasurer's office today. It was revealed the law provides their business establishment must be located in the municipalities wherein they live.

Deputy Treasurer A. E. Anke said a person licensed to sell beer in Pittsburgh must live in the city, and not in a suburb.

It was learned the State Attorney General's office will issue a statement Saturday giving its interpretation of provisions of the bill. These interpretations are designed to be "helpful" in the issuance of the licenses, but will not be the last word on controversial questions.

The Attorney General's opinion, it was learned, will not interpret that section of the act dealing with the place of the dealer's residence. Prosecutions arising from that provision probably would be left to local authorities or interested parties.

The first application received here was that of Thomas Kauzlarich, operating a restaurant in Verona.

District Attorney A. T. Park announced that if the County Treasurer wishes any applicant investigated, county detectives will do so. The law does not require inquiry in advance of issuance of licenses.

Bridge Firm Here Wins $22,000,000 Contract

Final contracts for $22,000,000 of steel for the San Francisco-Oakland bridge have been placed with the American Bridge Company, it was announced at its general offices here today.

The contracts call for approximately 124,000 tons of structural steel, most of which will be fabricated at the Ambridge and Gary plants of the American Bridge Company and the American Steel and Wire Company, both subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation, it was reported.

The order is said to be the largest of its kind ever placed.

Draftsmen will set to work immediately at Ambridge and Gary on plans for four steel towers, 500 feet high, officials stated, but actual fabrication of the steel will not get under way before the end of August.

Although officials of the steel concern said the huge order would furnish a "valuable backlog" to keep their mills operating during the coming winter, they discouraged any new applicants for mill jobs, as work will not start for several weeks and deliveries will not be made in California before next February.

The four towers alone will require months of labor after the plans are completed, it was explained, as they will have to be completely assembled and then dismantled before being shipped.

MORGAN CO. SELLS 3 BILLIONS OF SECURITIES IN 8 YEARS

SENATE TO SIFT HUGE PROFITS ON DEALS

120 Millions Seen as 'Gross Cut' in Transactions

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Three billion dollars in securities have been sold to the American investing public in the last eight years by the international banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co.

It is on its profits from these deals that among other things the firm will be questioned when its partners face a Senate investigation committee next week.

The gross profit of the house of Morgan and the members of the offering syndicates on the average is estimated around 4 per cent. Thomas Lamont, Morgan partner, stated before a Senate committee some months ago the "gross cut" of the syndicates ranged from 2 to 6 and 7 per cent.

A "gross cut" of 4 per cent, that is, before deducting syndicate expenses—one $3,000,000,000 would be $120,000,000.

The biggest year for Morgan syndicates was 1930—the first year of the depression. The next best was 1925. Excepting 1932, 1928 was strangely the smallest year for syndicates. The 1929 total was comparatively a slim one for Morgan syndicates.

The explanation for this, though, is found in the firm's activities in the merger field. Then it was creating United Corporation, the giant holding company in the public utility field; Standard Brands, the big foods combine, and Alleany Corporation, the bag for Van Sweringen railroad lines.

g Backs Rockefellers War Against Morgan

ASHINGTON, May 18.—(INS.)—
e approaching Senate battle the national banking reforms
today found Senator Long (Dem.), of Louisiana, lining up with the Rockefeller interests in their campaign to take control of the commercial banking world from J. P. Morgan & Co.

Although Long conducted a 21-day filibuster against the Glass banking reform bill at the last session of Congress, he told his colleagues he would support the revised measure in some of its most important features. He specifically indorsed the provision divorcing commercial from investment banking and denying security houses the right to conduct a commercial banking business.

These provisions in the new Glass bill were sponsored originally by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. They were recommended to President Roosevelt, who approved them, by Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of Chase National Bank and a brother-in-law of Rockefeller. The sections would force the Morgan firm, long a dominating influence in both the investment and commercial banking worlds, to choose one business or the other.

BANKER SCORES GUARANTY BILL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 18.—(INS.)—Congressional proposals to guarantee bank deposits were assailed as "futile and harmful" today at the opening session of the thirty-ninth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Bankers Association.

O. Howard Wolfe, president of the association and cashier of the Philadelphia National Bank, denounced the proposal, and surveyed the new banking legislation in generally unfavorable terms.

He said bankers themselves should amend their internal regulations "to take care hereafter of future emergencies." He added:

"Whenever deposit guaranty has been tried, it has inevitably resulted in the destruction of the greatest single restraint upon the banker; the knowledge that he will have to account to his depositors for their funds. Catastrophe has resulted."

A verdict was expected in Criminal Court today in the Rankin riot case, in wh[ich] 13 men have been on trial a[ll] week before Visiting Judge S. [Ross] discharged with creating a disturbance while attempting to hold an unemployment meeting at the Rankin High School April 12.

State witnesses said Valentine Delle Done led a crowd which tried to break into the school hall.

PINCHOT SEES EMPLOYES WED

HARRISBURG, May 18.—(AP.)—The Executive Mansion was the scene of a wedding today for the first time since former Gov. Fisher's daughter, Mrs. Henry Tatnall Brown, Jr., was married in 1928.

Two employes of the Governor's office were married in the mansion in the presence of Gov. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot.

They were Miss Geraldine N. Watts, Harrisburg, and Fred Rodell, Elkins Park.

RIDLEY AIDE'S PAST SIFTED

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP.)—Preparations were made today to send two detectives to Norfolk, Va., to investigate the past of Lee Weinstein, secretary, who was slain with his eccentric millionaire employer, Edward Albert Ridley, in Ridley's sub-cellar office in the lower East Side eight days ago.

Among the details still puzzling police is whether Weinstein ever was arrested in Norfolk. Two days ago detectives denied a report that Weinstein had been arrested in Norfolk on eight occasions on charges of gambling, but today the police appeared to be less sure of the accuracy of their denial.

A copy of Weinstein's marriage certificate showed he was married in Richmond on an unspecified date. The fact that Weinstein was married was unknown even to his relatives before his death.

Lutheran Churches Merged in Germany

BERLIN, May 18.—(AP.)—An important step toward unification of German churches was accomplished today by the fusion of all Evangelical Lutheran churches of the Reich, which hitherto were conducted separately in the different German states.

The object of the fusion, according to the new statute, is to form a homogenous Lutheran bloc within the coming Reich's Evangelical church.

Sound Boosters Installed In Senate

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(INS.)—For the first time in history amplifiers were installed in the Senate chamber today so the proceedings could be heard.

The Senate resorted to the mechanical sound boosters not because the vocal powers of its members were failing, but because witnesses in the impeachment trial of United States District Judge Harold Louderback used "parlor conversation" on the stand.

SPANISH NUNS, MONKS BANNED

MADRID, May 18.—(INS.)—More than 500,000 Spanish children today faced deprivation of a Catholic education following passage by the Cortes of a measure prohibiting monks and nuns to engage in teaching activities.

By an overwhelming vote, Republicans in the legislature gagged all opposition to force through their program embodying restrictions of church activity.

The monks and nuns will be ousted as teachers before the end of this year.

Property and treasures of the church, valued at $500,000,000, are seized by the government under the measure, which claps a ban on religious orders by forbidding them to function.

JAP URGES WAR ON DEPRESSION

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—(AP.)—Viscount Kikujiro Ishii, Jajan's delegate to the London economic conference, expressed hope the world would join in "a war against economic depression" as he paused here today en route to a conference with President Roosevelt in Washington.

Viscount Ishii, who arrived from the Orient yesterday, said:

"My mission is to confer with your government for the purpose of finding out how we may co-operate with you in the war which the nations of the world are now waging.

"Your President wants to pool the world's minds and brains and, I dare say, the world's hearts as well, to find the way out of this appalling situation. Japan is anxious to work with America and other nations for the common good of the world."

Wyoming Elects Repeal Delegates

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 18.—(INS.)—Overwhelmingly wet conventions were to meet in 23 Wyoming counties today to select delegates to a state convention to be held next week for the purpose of ratifying repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Returns from 19 of the 23 counties showed a popular vote in last Monday's precinct elections of 16,072 favoring and 3,202 opposing repeal.

MITCHELL HELD 'POOR MARTYR' BY COUNSEL

Keyes, office manager of J. P. Morgan & Co., that Mitchell had mortgaged his homes.

These mortgages were put up as further collateral with Morgan for a loan of $6,000,000 to Mitchell after the securities placed with the Morgan firm had dwindled in value.

Keyes, government witness, was cross-examined by Steuer.

He testified the mortgages left by Mitchell were duly recorded through a $5.750 fee payment on March 22, 1933.

However, United States Attorney George Z. Medalie took over the witness and revealed something else.

It seemed Mitchell had put up the mortgages in March, 1931, and their presence had been kept secret for two years, according to the witness.

Keyes, before being excused, also testified that Mitchell didn't receive a cent from the $12,000,000 loan granted him by J. P. Morgan & Co. It went to the National City Company to support the price of the bank stock.

WIFE FINANCIER

Mrs. Elizabeth Rend Mitchell, wife of Mitchell, was a financier in her own name, it was then revealed.

In at least a dozen cases, she recorded profits totaling more than $50,000 in transactions in which no money was passed, although correspondence between her husband and herself confirmed the deal.

With Edward F. Barrett, vice president of the National City Bank and former confidential secretary of Mitchell on the witness stand, Steuer brought these facts out to demonstrate to the jury that the sale of 18,300 shares of National City Bank stock by Mitchell to his wife on December 20, 1929, through an exchange of letters, was not unusual.

The government claims that this sale was fictitious and that its unreality was illustrated by the failure of money to be exchanged. It is charged that through this "pretended" deal Mitchell claimed a loss of $2,800,000 to evade income tax payment.

GENEVA HOPES RAISED

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 18.—(AP.)—The rapid sequence of events the last few days has largely placed the destiny of the disarmament conference in the hands of President Roosevelt and Chancellor Hitler, in the view of many conference delegates.

The influence of these two men, it was said today, constitutes a powerful factor in directing the course of the conference.

The Roosevelt message to the world and the Hitler Reichstag address generally were regarded as clearing the air and producing a new and more hopeful atmosphere.

U. S. Ready to Bargain For Disarmament

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(INS.)—While President Roosevelt and his State Department aides eagerly awaited the world's response to his universal peace plan, Norman H. Davis, America's roving ambassador of peace, today was due in Geneva with the offer of American severance from 13 years of isolation in return for drastic reduction of armaments.

Davis carried with him instructions to throw American support behind the British disarmament plan and offer as a bargaining point America's willingness to enter into a consultative pact, participate in an international commission to supervise control of armaments and give favorable consideration to the question of abandoning certain neutrality rights to prevent nationals from trading with an aggressor nation.

CONSULTATIVE PACT

How much the United States will give depends on how drastically the world powers agree to disarm.

Willingness to enter into a consultative pact will be the first offer, with participation in an international commission to supervise the control of armaments the second, and abandonment of the right to protect nationals trading with an aggressor nation the third and ultimate offer.

The latter, officials said, is unlikely to be sacrificed unless the world powers agree to a very great contribution to disarmament, such as the complete abolition of all offensive weapons of war.

A number of them, London and Paris included, have jumped to the conclusion that in proposing the abolition of offensive war weapons, a new non-aggressive pact, and "consultation" with other powers in the event of hostilities, President Roosevelt has made a complete about-face in American foreign policy.

U. S. CLARIFIES STAND

Such, the White House hastened to explain today, is not the case. To clarify the American position, the following statement was made:

"There is no obligation on the United States except in the following three possibilities:

"1—If every other nation agrees to eliminate weapons of offensive warfare the United States will do the same.

"2—If during the disarmament period every other nation agrees not to invade its neighbors subject to existing treaty rights, the United States will do the same thing.

"3—If there is violation of any such agreement or agreements, the United States would consult with other nations. This is no change from long-standing and existing policy.

"Determination of any action following consultation referred to would, of course, be fully open to determination by the United States at that time. That does not mean the United States will in company with other nations meet to determine this policy. The policy will be determined right here in Washington by officials in the light of events and circumstances prevailing at the time."

German Nation Rallies Behind Hitler Policy

BERLIN, May 18.—(AP.)—The whole German nation rallied today behind the government in solemnly assuring the world that her hallowed ideals are universal peace, universal disarmament and properly working economic machinery.

Such aims were included yesterday by Chancellor Hitler in his foreign policy pronouncements before the Reichstag in which he reiterated a demand for arms equality, accepted world peace proposals of America and pledged co-operation in guarantees of international tranquillity and security.

Seldom in the history of the Reichstag did a Chancellor's declaration win such unanimously overwhelming support of all classes and parties.

Newspapers took the stand that success of the world disarmament conference now was dependent upon the rest of the world extending a friendly hand to Germany.

JAPS OCCUPY 3 CHINA CITIES

TOKIO, May 18.—(AP.)—The city of Miyun, 35 miles north of Peiping, which has been the objective of a Japanese drive for the last week, was occupied this afternoon by the attacking army, the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency reported.

The occupation was effected, the Rengo dispatch said, by the 8th Division, commanded by Lieut.-Gen. Yoshikazu Nishi. The city was taken after Nanshengchiang, 10 miles to the northeast, had fallen to the 16th Infantry Brigade led by Maj.-Gen. Tadashi Kawahara, one of the units of the 8th Division.

A dispatch also stated the 14th Infantry Brigade of Maj.-Gen. Heijiro Hattori today occupied Shihmenchen, 10 miles south of Malangu.

KING, MUSSOLINI SUPPORT F. R.

ROME, May 18.—(AP.)—King Victor Emmanuel today cabled direct to President Roosevelt his "most cordial agreement with the initiative" of the President.

At the same time Premier Mussolini sent to the United States government, by way of the Italian Embassy at Washington, the following reply to the President's disarmament message to the world:

"The Italian government adheres in the most cordial manner to President Roosevelt's initiative."

RETAIL TRADE GAIN SEEN BY ROBERTSON

Tour of Plants Shows Production Increase In Household Goods

The industrial machine was given added impetus in its forward movement today by A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. On an inspection tour of Westinghouse plants throughout the country Robertson declared business was definitely improving.

Completing an inspection of the company's East Springfield, Mass. works, he said:

"Having visited all departments of the East Springfield plant, I feel encouraged to find them operating at a capacity of 65 per cent and those departments devoted to manufacture of refrigerators working at 100 per cent of capacity. Twenty-five hundred employes are working full time.

"This condition is especially encouraging because a large part of the plant facilities are devoted to making household appliances and accessories. It indicates a definite stimulation in retail sales for this class of products."

Follansbee Brothers announced their new combination mill, the entire strip mill, another sheet mill and the tin house at Wheeling will start on a 100 per cent basis next Monday for the first time since 1928. More than 1,200 men will be employed, it was said.

INCREASED FREIGHT

The Pennsylvania Railroad also made it known that several freight cars have been added at Weirton to handle increased shipments.

Coinciding with the marked resuscitation of industry in the Pittsburgh area, business in Washington County has forged ahead in recent weeks, according to reports. Both the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio railroads have announced increases in freight shipments from glass factories and steel and annealing mills in the district.

Demand on the Great Lakes market for coal has increased bituminous production, with the posibility it will continue through the summer, according to coal operators.

The W. J. Rainey, Inc., mines in the Fredericktown section are operating day and night at full capacity, and miners at Vesta Coal Company operations are working four days a week, with prospects of increasing this to six days within a short time, a survey showed.

Mines in the Avella district, upset recently by radical elements, are again working fairly steadily, reports indicate. A new coal washer costing $100,000 is under construction there and new mines are opening weekly.

SPIRIT OF OPTIMISM

The spirit of optimism is also visible in Greene County. At Mather more than 700 men are working five and six days a week, while the Buckeye Coal Company mine at Nemacolin is operating at about 40 per cent of normal capacity.

The Duncan Miller Glass Company in Washington, which for months operated a day shift only, has five shops working on a night shift, it was announced. Manufacture of beer mugs and other table ware has increased production there. Plants of the Hazel-Atlas Glass Company also are noting a pickup in demands.

DEATH OF MAID STILL MYSTERY

A coroner's jury today could not determine who killed Hilda Lindberg, 44, maid in a Woodlawn road home, and rendered a verdict that she had been slain by some person or persons unknown.

From the time the woman's battered body was found in Supreme way, in the rear of North Beatty street on April 1, detectives, led by Homicide Detective Frank Ferris, have failed to definitely establish a motive or identify the slayer.

It is believed she quarreled with a man with whom she was dealing in stocks.

PRUSSIAN DIET YIELDS POWER

BERLIN, May 18.—(AP.)—The Prussian Diet today adopted an enabling act shearing itself of all parliamentary powers and adjourned for an indefinite period.

The act, introduced by Premier Hermann Goering and his Nazi floor leader, Wilhelm Kube, was approved by the votes of all parties except the Socialists. The Diet is subject to recall by the premier and his floor leader.

World Views on Hitler Armaments Stand

Associated Press.

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is said to be greatly pleased that Chancellor Hitler approved his plans for peace.

PARIS—French reaction is represented as being that acts alone can prove Germany's sincerity toward peace. Edouard Herriot, former Premier, warns that Germany will claim equality on sea after equality on land.

BERLIN—Overwhelming support for speech is voiced. Centrist newspaper, Germania, says it is "having the cleansing effect of an electric storm."

LONDON—Chancellor's speech clears much anxiety. Is regarded as gratifying, but needing indorsement of subsequent acts.

VIENNA—Applause for the address appeared in papers.

ROME—Favorable reaction throughout Italy. Officials withhold comment on Roosevelt and Hitler pronouncements pending statement which Premier Mussolini may make Saturday, perhaps warning that world is perched on powder keg.

Aged Woman Collapses From Weight of Gold

NEWARK, N. J., May 18.—(AP.)—An aged woman is in the hospital today suffering from a heart attack, induced to some extent, physicians said, by the weight of the money she carried in her clothing as she worked in a fur shop.

Mrs. Enrica Tabarinni, 61, collapsed at work. She was taken to City Hospital.

A nurse lifted her clothing and found it heavy. Sewed inside linings were found gold coins, currency and bonds valued at more than $5,500. They weighed several pounds.

GIRL FIGHTING POISON DEATH UNAIDED

Science Powerless to Offset Pills Taken By Mistake

DETROIT, May 18.—(AP.)—All the world's knowledge of medical science and chemistry is not going to help 22-year-old Agnes Rensik, of Chicago, lying in a hospital bed here waiting to see whether a slow-acting poison will give her life—or death.

Physicians who have attended her since she left a Chicago-bound bus Monday said tablets the girl took by mistake while visiting friends in Toledo contained, not headache medicine, but a powerful, slow-acting poison, against which there is no known antidote.

BEGINS TO WORRY

Agnes told physicians she did not feel the effects of the poison when she took the tablets a week ago, and said she took a prescribed antidote, and "forgot all about it." Then, she said, she began to worry while en route by bus from Toledo to Chicago, and decided to see physicians in Detroit. She was placed at once in receiving hospital. Dr. E. T. Olson, superintendent, said:

"Agnes will have to fight this out alone. The poison is slow-working and takes two weeks to leave the system. The damage it does to vital organs is what really proves fatal. Agnes is a healthy girl—and that is where her hope lies. Our work is to keep up her strength."

RELATIVES ROBBED

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Rensik, of Chicago, are at her bedside.

Relatives of the Rensik girl who drove here today from Chicago reported the theft of two suitcases containing clothing and $1,000 in cash from their automobile, parked near the hospital.

The relatives were two brothers of the girl, Rudolph and Joseph; a sister, Mrs. Mary Simonson; Mrs. Joseph Rensik, the mother, and Rudolph's son, Rudolph, Jr.

The money, they said, represented the savings of Rudolph Rensik, who is employed in a Chicago freight office. He said he had withdrawn the money, believing it might be needed in helping his sister.

BLONDE BANDIT ROBS AGED PAIR

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 18.—(AP.)—An attractive blonde, who poses occasionally as a missionary and carries a gun is dodging police today after binding and robbing a man and his wife at their home in Indian Head.

Oliver T. Witt, 66, and his wife, 58, told police that the woman held a gun on them while a male companion bound them to chairs with clothes line, gagged them, and fled with loot totaling $1.

Mrs. Witt said the blonde solicited them for funds several weeks ago, posing as a missionary.

PUPILS ACCEPT STRIKE 'TRUCE'

KANE, Pa., May 18.—(AP.)—About 300 Kane High School pupils who are striking in protest against the dismissal of a teacher agreed today to return to school until Monday.

A spokesman said that if the teacher, John Getz, is not offered a new contract by Monday they will walk out again.

Getz was dismissed as an economy measure. He teaches history and art.

The pupils consented to return to their classes after school officials had pledged themselves to do everything possible to reinstate Getz.

School Board Bows To Student Demand

MEADVILLE, Pa., May 18.—(AP.)—Meadville High School's military senior class celebrated a victory over the school board last night.

The board at a special meeting voted to accede to student petitions that the annual commencement exercises be held in a local theater instead of the school auditorium and reversed its decision of several weeks ago.

TWO STOKOWSKI GIRLS GUARDED

NEW YORK, May 18.—(INS.)—Wealthy parents of young children in the East Eighties exercised special vigilance today as a result of a kidnaping scare involving the two daughters of Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the son of Supreme Court Justice Julius Miller, formerly borough president of Manhattan.

The suspicions of the Stokowski family chauffeur were aroused by the actions of strange men who prowled around the automobile outside the home. He called the police, but nothing further developed. The two girls, Luba, 6, and Sadja, 2, have been closely guarded by a private detective for a year.

A private detective was reported also to have accompanied Peter Miller, 7, son of Justice Miller, to and from his home. The judge denied that any threats had been received.

2 MORE MAUG CHASES VAIN

Two more tips that John Maug and Edward Turpack were seen in widely separated places, Mifflin Township and Point Breeze, were run down without result today.

Eight heavily armed county detectives searched Mifflin Township on information that two men answering the description of the two escaped Western Penitentiary "lifers" had established headquarters in the district where they recently were trapped in an abandoned stone quarry, but slipped away. No trace of them was found.

Later East End police scout cars dashed to Point Breeze on a tip that a man believed Maug had been seen there. A search proved futile.

RETRIAL DENIED POLICEMAN

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 18.—(AP.)—A citizen is not bound to submit to illegal arrest, Judge Erwin Cummins ruled today in denying a new trial to Patrolman John Cochran, convicted of manslaughter.

Cochran shot Charles E. Bittner, chain store manager, last August when he attempted to arrest Bittner for loitering.

Cochran is scheduled to be sentenced Saturday. His counsel announced an appeal would be made to the Supreme Court.

BONUS PARADE OFF AGAIN

WASHINGTON, May 18. — (INS.)—Another bonus army parade was called off today as the tents of more than 2,000 marchers hummed with discord.

Comfortably ensconced in the Fort Hunt (Va.) encampment established at orders of President Roosevelt, the veterans appeared to be waiting for reinforcements rather than anything else.

The President has ordered the camp broken up on Monday, but the men were becoming less pleased with this decision hourly.

The decision to call off the parade was reached at a turbulent meeting when it was seen that there were not enough veterans here to make a sizable showing.

BOY, 2, FALLS THREE STORIES

Two-year-old Irving Shapira was in Passavant Hospital today with a possible fracture of the skull, suffered in a fall from a third-story window of his home, 1901 Bedford avenue, yesterday.

While his mother, Mrs. Ann Shapira, was busy in the next room, Irving, unnoticed, climbed to the window sill of a back room. He lost his balance and fell to the cement sidewalk. Found unconscious by Samuel Katz, of 1852 Monaca place, he was taken to the hospital.

ARDENT NOTES READ IN SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Mocked by 'Sweetie' Of Husband, Says Millvale Wife

Tender missives that Matthew J. Bollenbacher, 1108 North avenue, Millvale, was alleged to have exchanged with "Jane" were presented as evidence in his wife's suit for divorce today. Mrs. Rosalia Bollenbacher, of 1316 Evergreen avenue, Millvale, testified that three months after she married Bollenbacher in August, 1930, she found a letter to him from "Jane," who saluted him as "My spoiled sweetheart."

Mrs. Bollenbacher said her husband told her there was "nothing to it." Then there were telephone calls from women, during one of which, she said, she was informed that the caller was more of a wife to Bollenbacher than was Mrs. Bollenbacher.

Finally, she testified, "Jane" sent her a letter which she claimed Bollenbacher had written to her. The missive addressed her as "Dearest Jane" and inquired as to what she would say "if I would ask you to go away with me from Pittsburgh and never come back." Then:

"I would suffer the tortures of hell for you. If you don't go away with me, I will kidnap you."

Mrs. Bollenbacher testified she and her husband separated January 30, 1932. Her suit was heard by Judge Frank P. Patterson.

MRS. CARUSO MAY WED

PARIS, May 18.—(Universal)—Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso Ingram, widow of Enrico Caruso, celebrated tenor, is to become a June bride, according to her friends here.

The bridegroom, friends say, will be Dr. Charles Adams Holder, of New York and Philadelphia, banker and former member of the United States consular service. Holder is a widower.

Mrs. Caruso Ingram is wearing an engagement ring, which her friends say is more convincing than her and Dr. Holder's persistent public denials of romance. It is said the couple plan to spend the summer at Fontainebleau.

Should the report be true, this would be Mrs. Caruso Ingram's third marriage. After the death of her famous first husband, she was married to Ernest A. Ingram, former captain in the British army, from whom she was divorced in 1926.

The untimely death in 1930 of Alexander P. Moore, Pittsburgh publisher and former ambassador to Spain, is said to have ended a courtship which might have meant a third marriage for Mrs. Caruso Ingram

Gandhi Expected To Pull Through

POONA, India, May 18.—(AP.)—As fit at 64 as the average man of 40, said the bulletin today of a physician who examined the Mahatma Gandhi, in the second week of a three-weeks' fast against "untouchability."

The physician largely attributed the Indian leader's continued satisfactory condition to his extraordinary mental control and conservation of his energies. He said he was satisfied the Mahatma would pull through the self-imposed ordeal.

MARITAL WAR DETAILS TOLD IN COURT

Lost Her Clothing at Dance With Rival, Husband Testifies

NEWPORT, R. I., May 18.—(AP.)—F. Frazier Jelke, Newport summer colonist, on the witness stand today in the trial for his suit for divorce, said that within a few months after their marriage, in 1931, Eugenia Woodward Jelke told him she would divorce him, screamed at and cursed him, bit his ear, tore his shirt and spent $8,000 for clothes.

Jelke said that he gave his wife a $15,000 engagement ring, a $400 gold cigaret case and $800 worth of perfume, and his reward was that she threatened him not only with a divorce, but that she would "show the world what kind of a man you are." He testified she said:

"Before I get through with you you'll get down on your knees and offer me any amount of alimony to make me lay off."

CLOTHING TORN OFF

In Paris, he said, in the spring of 1931, she went to the Beaux Arts Ball with another man and came home at 7 in the morning with almost all her clothing torn off.

In the same city, he said, she told him to go out and get another woman.

Jelke said he replied to her:

"What are you trying to do; establish an alibi for yourself?"

In London, he said, she paraded about in flashy clothes until he remonstrated with her that people must think she was a paid mannikin. He said that this remark provoked a physical assault, declaring that she leaped upon him and he had to push her off in order to get away.

While they were in Chicago, soon after the wedding, he said, she took him out on a party which lasted until 3 o'clock in the morning, and then after he had done a hard day's work, she tried to make him go out to another party the following evening. He said he protested, saying:

"I can't go. I'm exhausted. I'll collapse at the table."

'TAKE SOME DRINKS'

He said she cursed in reply and said:

"Take a couple of drinks you'll feel better."

He said he picked up the phone to cancel the engagement.

"And she leaped at me like an angry animal, let out a couple of oaths, and grabbed the telephone."

While on a honeymoon cruise in the West Indies, he said, she received word that her sister, Ann, had married a young man who was disapproved of by her family. He said Mrs. Jelke remarked that she envied her sister because she had married a young man she loved.

SUNDAY'S SUN-TELEGRAPH

MRS. PINCHOT LEADS WAR ON SWEATSHOPS

HARRISBURG, May 17.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's great crusade to rescue child workers from unscrupulous factory bosses is off to a vigorous start.

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, copper-haired, dynamic wife of the Governor, who recently "picketed" textile plants with youthful strikers, has assumed leadership in the fight that is to be carried into the special session of the Legislature near the end of the year. From pale lips of tired girls and boys who clung to her as she led a recent demonstration in the Lehigh Valley, Mrs. Pinchot has gleaned a tragic story.

ROUSING STATE

From thousands of letters piled high on the desk in her quiet study overlooking the silvery Susquehanna, she has rounded out the indictment she hopes will arouse the entire state. She asserts:

"I believe that every man and woman in Pennsylvania who knows the facts will be with us, that's why I went into the picket lines."

The state's "First Lady" became interested in the cause of the 'teen age strikers after a delegation of workers from needlecraft centers came to the Capitol.

At a hearing before the Governor and members of the Legislature, they protested against conditions. They also talked with the Governor and Mrs. Pinchot at the executive mansion.

JOINED PICKETS

A few weeks later Mrs. Pinchot drove to Allentown and Northampton, was given a thundering ovation by the strikers and joined them in picketing several plants.

She heard young girls assert that they lost their factory jobs because they objected to advances of "the boss."

They talked to her of their hopes for better wages and better working conditions. Some shirt factory workers told her they received as low as 57 cents a week.

Mrs. Pinchot promised to help them; to do all she could to send them "back to school where they belong."

Meanwhile, the General Assembly approved a legislative investigation of conditions in factory centers and the Governor and leaders agreed tightening of the child labor laws is a problem for the special session of the Legislature.

And Pennsylvania's greatest war on child labor exploiters was begun.

There the Queen, attended by Mary Guiliano and Dolores Sullivan, will be crowned at the altar. During the singing of the Hymn of May, she will place her crown on the head of the Blessed Virgin.

NAME PROBERS OF SWEATSHOPS

HARRISBURG, May 18.—(AP.)—Members of two legislative committees, authorized by the recent session, were appointed yesterday to investigate sweatshop conditions and to study the effect of reduced federal aid on disabled and partly disabled Pennsylvania war veterans.

The sweatshop investigating committee comprises Representatives T. J. Gallagher, Allegheny, sponsor of the enabling resolution; Eugene J. Gorman, Lehigh, and Roy W. Shreiner, Dauphin, and Senators Richard S. Quigley, Clinton; Clarence J. Buchman, Bucks, and Bertram G. Frazier, Philadelphia.

To this committee will be added three citizens to be named by Gov. Pinchot.

The veterans' investigating committee includes Representatives George N. Wade, Cumberland; Ray W. McKay, Mercer, and Alex R. Wheeler, Forest, and Senators Joseph R. Ziesenheim, Erie, and Charles W. Staudenmeier, Schuylkill.

The committees will organize next month.

RALLY TO FIGHT SWEATSHOPS

Sweatshop labor conditions in Pennsylvania will be exposed at a mass meeting arranged by the League for Social Justice and the Pennsylvania Security League May 25 at the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street.

Stephen Raushenbush, former Director of the State Bureau of Industrial Relations, will describe conditions as he found them in Pennsylvania industry. Social legislation against the sweatshop evil will be discussed.

County Aides Scan Tax Record System

George E. Meyers, head of the County Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes and Maj. W. T. Rees, chief clerk to the County Commissioners, are in Johnstown today examining the taxable transcribing system there.

The county is seeking a more efficient method. Use of mechanical devices is said to be contemplated to eliminate errors.

Autoists Doing Less Than Forty Face Arrest

CHICAGO, May 18.—(AP.)—Judge Thomas Green, of the Traffic Court told police officers that drivers of automobiles making less than 40 miles an hour on through streets and boulevards in Chicago should be promptly arrested.

The idea is to prevent traffic jams, especially during the World's Fair.

FIREMEN SAVE DOG ON CLIFF

Animal Rescue League attaches today were endeavoring to find the owner of a police dog rescued from a ledge above Bigelow boulevard near the Pennsylvania Railroad Station last night.

Rush hour traffic in the boulevard was halted for 15 minutes while firemen from Engine Company No. 3 climbed an 85-foot ladder and carried the animal down. It had strayed to a ledge about 30 feet below the top of a cliff.

When it was discovered the dog could neither ascend nor descend from its perilous position, firemen were summoned.

U. S. Reduces Tax On Estates Here

Abatements in federal estate taxes were made today to two Pittsburgh district estates. The Herbert DuPuy estate was given an abtement of $63,504 and the estate of E. M. Gross, Greensburg, $91,210. The abatements were made as the result of payment of state inheritance tax.

AGE PENSIONS IN 34 STATES

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP.)—The sixth national conference on old age security was told today that more than 52,000,000 persons in the United States are now protected by old age pension legislation.

Abraham Epstein, executive secretary of the American Association for Old Age Security, gave this figure in his annual report in which he told of nine states which have enacted old age pension laws this year. There was already such legislation in 25 states. Epstein said:

"It is truly gratifying to be able to report that 1933 stands out as the year of greatest achievement in providing security for the dependent aged. More than half of the Union is now in the pension column."

Pennsylvanians are not among the people protected by old age pensions, and the subject was a matter of bitter controversy at the recent session of the Legislature. Foes of such pensions killed legislation which would have allowed the voters to decide in November whether they favored an old age pension law.

Pittsburgh Synod Elects Officers

The Rev. B. A. Black, of Meyersdale, was elected president of the Pittsburgh Synod of the Reformed Church at its closing session in Homestead today. The Rev. J. H. Woomer, Greenville, was named vice president; the Rev. Dr. J. H. Mickley, Greenville, stated clerk, and the Rev. W. M. Diefenderfer, Sharon, treasurer.

Historical Society Meeting Next Week

The Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania will meet May 23, with Dr. John W. Oliver, head of the department of history, University of Pittsburgh, presiding.

Papers will be read by A. John Dodds, teacher at Ambridge High School, and William J. Martin, assistant professor of history at the university.

We don't propose to confuse you with a lot of economic facts and figures. The fact is that we are storekeepers, not college professors. But here's a very important story to us both.

Last March we bought linens in Ireland for our Anniversary.

The Pound Sterling was then equal to $3.40. Today it is the equivalent of $3.93, or an increase in price of almost 16%. Suppose we illustrate it this way. Say a linen cloth had cost us a Pound or $3.40 in Belfast last March. We would have to pay $3.93 to replace it with a cloth of identical quality today.

We really should increase the price of our linens now because of the weakness of the Dollar across the sea. Others are doing it and with perfect justification. But we've promised to maintain Anniversary prices at Gimbels through to the last day in May. And so help us, we're going to!

PUBLIC WORKS BILL TO AID PITTSBURGH

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Early stabilization of the bituminous coal industry, together with definite authority for governmental aid in carrying out any number of important public works projects in Western Pennsylvania, is provided for in the mammoth public works-industrial control legislation which President Roosevelt has just submitted to Congress.

At the same time, the bill authorizes an outright grant of approximately $21,000,000 to the state of Pennsylvania for highway construction. The amount represents the state's share of a fund of $400,000,000 set aside for primary and secondary road building to be undertaken throughout the country as an aid to employment.

Stabilization of the much harrassed bituminous coal industry will be undertaken through a section of the comprehensive legislation regulating the production and distribution of basic industries and preventing cut-throat competition.

'NEW DEAL' FOR COAL

The President himself is given power to initiate a plan for the stabilization of the coal industry in the event the operators fail to take action. Any plan adopted and approved by the President would continue in effect for two years, after which the government would relax its supervision with the expectation that the industry itself would be able to keep its house in order.

Equally important to Pittsburgh and Allegheny County is another section of the far-reaching legislation giving counties, states and cities authority to initiate most any kind of a public works project with the assurance that it will be available for benefits.

Under this section officials of Pittsburgh or Allegheny County may obtain funds for building subways, river improvements, sewage disposal plants, tunnels, or any similar project of a public works character.

And if the project is of a public character the President may, in his discretion, provide a gift up to 30 per cent of the cost of the project.

PRIVATE LOANS

Moreover, provision is made for extensive loans to private persons or corporations for development of self-liquidating projects, such as the central market proposed for Pittsburgh by Edgar Kaufmann, prominent local merchant, be exceedingly liberal.

Still another section of the bill which may have a pointed bearing on plans of Pittsburgh authorities gives the President broad powers to encourage back-to-the-farm movements.

The section was incorporated in the measure especially to take unemployed industrial workers out of crowded city quarters and set them up on farms, where they can be made self-sustaining. Under this provision Pittsburgh or Allegheny County officials would be empowered to buy up land, provide buildings and equipment and return to farm enterprise those who know something about farming.

4 U. S. JOB TAX PLANS OFFERED

phone calls costing between 25 and 50 cents; apply admission tax beginning at 20 cents.

4—A general manufacturers excise tax of 1¼ per cent with no exemptions, or 1 3-5 per cent.

The Budget Director said there was some doubt as to whether the tea, coffee and cocoa taxes would not come in conflict with the administration's tariff truce.

ROOSEVELT MAY ACT

He also said that unless Congress makes a choice of a tax program by Monday, President Roosevelt himself will recommend one.

The primary aim of the bill is to halt wage slashing to a "sweatshop level," Douglas told the committee.

As hearings began Chairman Doughton (Dem.), of North Carolina, appealed to members to drop all partisanship in consideration of the measure.

Secretary of the Treasury Woodin was called as the first witness. He, however, delegated the Treasury representation to Douglas, who had an important part in framing the bill. Douglas said:

"In certain industries there is what is known as cut-throat competition. There are a few employers not imbued with public spirit who have cut wages to a sweatshop level. It is for the purpose of rectifying these conditions that the bill is introduced."

The program as a whole met a favorable reception in Congress, which spread optimism among those charged with translating the program into law.

IMMENSE POWER SOUGHT

Although most of the features of the bill submitted by the President with his message had been well known, the full scope of the plan as shown by the bill literally stunned the rank and file of Congress.

The power conferred upon the President in the measure is declared in some respects to surpass any proposal yet laid before Congress. Under the measure the President may by express or indirect authority (this power would be limited over products moving in interstate commerce):

License or revoke the license of any industrial establishment or business for failure to observe his code of fair competition.

Fix minimum wages and hours of labor, and establish other working conditions.

Regulate and restrict manufacturing production.

Advance federal funds to states and cities for public works.

Make loans to railroads for maintenance and equipment purchase on approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Designate what and where public buildings shall be constructed, and build Navy to treaty limits.

Condition advances to states, counties or cities upon a drastic cut in expenditures of these bodies for ordinary government.

The public works provision, including $400,000,000 for highways, is expected by administration leaders to provide jobs for at least 1,000,000 persons.

BOY-ACTOR PALS FOES IN COURT

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—(AP.)—Two juvenile film actors, friends in real life, became adversaries in the court room yesterday as Leon Holmes, 18, took the witness stand in his $27,500 damage suit against 15-year-old Frankie Darro for injuries Holmes received in a motor car accident.

Holmes testified Darro drove his machine 45 miles an hour out on a wet pavement and that he warned him he was going too fast.

He quoted Darro as saying:

"Hold on and I'll give you a thrill."

Operatic Soprano Sues for Divorce

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—(AP.)—Squire Coop, lecturer in music at the University of California at Los Angeles, said last night he had been served with papers in a divorce suit instituted in Chicago by Marjorie Dodge, operatic soprano, from whom he has been separated the last five years. He said:

"Her desire to follow her career is the cause of the suit. I admire her ambition very much."

Aims of F. R. Job Bill Told by Miss Perkins

Immediate Benefits To Industry and Workers Seen

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP.)—As described by Secretary Frances Perkins the huge public works-industrial regulation bill laid before Congress by President Roosevelt is designed to "bring purchasing power into step with our mass production."

This would be accomplished on one side by putting money into the hands of the unemployed through the $3,300,000,000 construction program, and one the other by regulating industry so that a stabilized production would be kept in tune with the movement upward from the depression.

The secretary pointed out that the first weekly payrolls paid to workers meant at ast a pair of shoes and three shirts sold, and that industry should immediately feel the effects.

INDUSTRIAL CODE

As for industry itself, the new voluntary co-operative agreements which would be permitted under the bill would work somewhat along this line:

An administrator would be appointed by President Roosevelt with almost unlimited powers to supervise the agreements among the various trades and industries designed to regulate working hours, fix a minimum wage and stabilize production.

The trade association composed of members of the industry—coal for instance—would draw up a "code of fair competition," fixing the amount of coal to be mined and sold and the minimum price for which it would be sold. If approved by the administration, the agreement would be legal, with the anti-trust laws relaxed.

However, the administration would first have to satisfy himself that it imposed no inequitable restrictions on membership, and that the code would not promote monopoly or discriminate against the small producer.

EMPLOYES' RIGHTS

The agreement would provide for collective bargaining by employes, protect the right of a worker seeking employment to join a labor organization, and an agreement by employers to comply with regulations prescribed by the President or administrator to govern minimum pay, hours of work and working conditions.

This power is sufficient, Secretary Perkins said, to eliminate the "sweatshop" and prevent "cut-throat competition by the fly-by-night producer."

If the industry failed to agree on a code, the administrator would be authorized to enforce a code prescribed by him.

BLINKER LIGHTS TO FOIL BANDITS

Mayor John S. Herron suggested to Public Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., today, that all traffic stop lights be converted to blinker lights at midnight to frustrate "stop light" bandits.

In a letter to Denny, the Mayor said many people are worried by the necessity of stopping at traffic lights in view of holdups that have occurred when motorists stopped.

U. S. PLANS 34 NAVAL SHIPS

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(INS.)—Thirty-four Naval vessels will be laid down this year at an outlay of about $46,000,000 under the re-employment plan of the President submitted to Congress.

This was the prediction today of Representative Vinson (Dem.), of Georgia, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee.

Lay Cornerstone For Home Today

Prominent churchmen were to attend ceremonies at the laying of the cornerstone of Lowrie Hall, Ridge avenue, North Side, late this afternoon. The hall, a home for furloughed missionaries, is being built by the Western Theological Seminary at a cost of $40,000.

It is to be named for the late Rev. Dr. John C. Lowrie. The stone will be laid by Mrs. D. L. Gillespie.

GIRL WALKING ROPE PLUNGES

SAN MATEO, Cal., May 18.—(AP.)—Injured in a 50-foot fall from the "big top" of the Al G. Barnes circus, Miss Bertha Matlock, tight-rope performer, was in serious condition here today.

Despite the efforts of her father, William Matlock, trapeze instructor, to break her fall, Miss Matlock suffered severe spine injuries.

80th Veteran Wins Suit Over Insurance

Joseph Stenplewski, of Pittsburgh, a World war veteran, was awarded a verdict of $9,775 by a Federal court jury, in an action against the government to recover on a $10,000 war risk insurance policy.

It was testified he developed tuberculosis, pneumonia and other ailment as a result of being gassed and shell shocked while serving in the Eightieth Division at Montfaucon, France.

LANDLORD HELD IN EVICTION

Meyer Talenfeld, 42, real estate dealer, of 2128 Center avenue, was arrested charged with disorderly conduct today after he was alleged to have become boisterous and called policemen names while he was attempting to evict a Mahon street family for nonpayment of rent.

HIGH 'NUMBERS' PLAY CHARGED TO HUSBAND

Writing of "numbers" and playing them as high as $3 per day were among the diversions of her husband, Mrs. Thelma Gibson Vay, of 1818 Kleber street, told Judge Frank P. Patterson, in asking a divorce from Elmer Benedict Vay, jeweler.

Mrs. Vay, who is only 18, said her husband did not provide for her. She added:

"He never gave me more than $3 at a time and all the time we were married he never gave me more than $25. My parents bought us the furniture to go to housekeeping."

She charged cruel and barbarous treatment.

FOUGHT OVER MILK

Heated arguments over the formula for the baby's milk helped to bring discord between Mrs. Pearl J. Allen, of 502 South Lang avenue, and her husband, Anson W. Allen, it was testified by the wife, granted a divorce by Judge Patterson. She said:

"He said there should be just so much milk, and because I objected he struck me."

Mrs. Allen also testified that her husband, who formerly was employed by a downtown bank, had gone with other women. They were married October 11, 1924.

CHARGES THREAT

Her husband told her the only thing she was good for was ironing shirts, and frequently threatened to kill her, Mrs. Mary Agnes French, of 117 Grant avenue, told the court. She was granted a divorce from Edward J. French, draftsman.

Mrs. Marie A. Frain, of 2114 Hudson street, Swissvale, who told Judge Patterson her husband quit work after they got an automobile and kept company with another girl, also was granted a divorce. She said:

"One girl sent me a postcard and I later talked to her."

FOSSIL OF SHARK FOUND HERE

Relic of Days When Bellevue Was An Ocean

When Western Pennsylvania—particularly Bellevue and Emsworth—were washed by the waves of the sea, oh, some 100,000,000 years ago—well, dear children, there used to be sharks in those waters.

And if you don't believe it, and think it was just once upon a time, call William C. (Bill) Darrah, out at Carnegie Museum, and he might show you the fossil of the shark he found the other day along the Ohio River boulevard.

He has the shark, embedded on a piece of slate, to prove it to you. It is the first such discovery made on this North American continent. And, according to Darrah, when the mountains began to move southward and the glaciers were crushing their way from the North, they trapped this shark along the boulevard in Bellevue, and slate formed around it and preserved it for modern students to look at.

Darrah explained:

"I was hunting fossil plants along the bank, cut out with the building of the boulevard, when I noticed the slate and the bone formations on it. The head was missing. I looked around for it, but the head had probably broken off.

"The country during the carboniferous period, when coal was in process of formation, was semi-tropical. Other specimens like this have been found, but only in Russia, Prussia and Czechoslovakia. It's called, in science, a ganoid, and has been considered the missing link between the earliest shark and the modern day shark. The earliest type had cartilage, bones forming later.

"It wasn't a man eater, for it was only about a foot long. But it lived here when the sea was making its last stand, when the eruptions from the mountains were pushing it down into what is probably the Gulf of Mexico. It is likely the gulf extended up here then. I also found half a dozen shark's teeth along the Allegheny River."

Last year Darrah, who is an assistant to Dr. O. E. Jennings, curator of botany at the Museum and a Pitt professor, found a prehistoric salamander, called the branchiosaurus, along a Montrose hillside near Aspinwall. It, too, was unusual in the field of science.

BILL GETS FIRST EXPERIENCE AS FLIER

Instructor Soon Forced to Take Controls

WIN YOUR WINGS
Installment No. 4.

Bill buckled on his parachute and climbed into the plane, the instructor taking his place in the front cockpit. After warming up the engine for a few moments Jack Miller turned to Bill, saying: "I'll take her up, then when I raise both hands you try flying her, but let go when I wiggle the stick."

Bill nodded his assent and the instructor opened the throttle. After taxiing for a few moments he turned the plane into the wind and gave it the gas. The ship began rolling across the field, faster and faster and, before Bill realized it, and with no sensation at all, he found they were in the air. They climbed steadily for a while, then after levelling off the instructor raised his hands above his head.

Bill grasped the stick, and as the plane tipped slightly to the right, he quickly pushed as far as he could to the left. The effect was instantaneous, and the plane keeled over violently to that side.

Frantically Bill pushed the stick to the other side, and with equal rapidity the ship heeled over to the right.

Bill breathed a sigh of relief as the instructor wiggled the stick and he released the controls. After leveling off again Miller cut the throttle and yelled back:

"You're over-controlling. Hold the stick lightly and move it gently. Now have another try."

Bill took hold again, this time very gingerly and things went much better. After he had flown around for a few minutes the instructor took over the plane and brought it back to earth. Climbing out he turned to bill.

"Not bad, but don't handle her so violently. A finger and thumb is enough to do the trick."

"I see," said Bill.

"You have to fly the planes we use," the instructor continued. "Some of these flivver planes will fly themselves, but you don't learn anything on them. I've seen the boys who learn on them. When they finish they still can't fly a real airplane, and all the instruction they've had is wasted. In fact they usually have a lot of bad habits and are harder to teach than someone who has never flown at all.

"Being an approved school we have to give instruction to our limited commercial and transport students in at least three different types of airplane. Consequently we teach our boys to fly properly from the beginning. Otherwise our heavy equipment wouldn't last long. You can't step a man up from a powered glider to a three place or cabin job unless he has been taught to be a pilot first."

"Do different airplanes fly differently?"

"Yes. Its just like changing from a rowboat to a motorboat. If you learn how to handle a real airplane you can fly a glider,

THE INSTRUCTOR: 'HOLD ON, WILLIAM, HERE WE GO UP . . .'

Light Touch Enough To Guide Ship, Student Learns

but although you can fly a glider it doesn't mean you can fly an airplane. Well, you come around tomorrow and we'll have another try.

"Oke," replied the boy. "I'll be 'round."

MANY BEQUESTS IN HERSHMAN WIDOW'S WILL

The husband and three children of Mrs. Belle C. Hershman Martinek, of Bellefield avenue, receive more than half of her $1,050,000 estate under terms of her will, on file today.

Mrs. Martinek, widow of Col. Oliver S. Hershman, former owner of The Pittsburgh Press, died Saturday in her home. Funeral services were held yesterday.

Two score relatives and friends are remembered in the will. The University of Pittsburgh, University of Southern California and Grace Reformed Church, Dithridge and Bayard streets, are bequeathed $10,000 each.

GEMS BEQUEATHED

After making bequests totaling around $400,000 Mrs. Martinek directs that the remainder be divided into six parts.

Three of the six are left "to my beloved husband, Anthony Martinek, to be his absolutely."

One part is left in trust, the income to go to her son, Harold Boyd Hershman, for life. At his death the income goes to his son, Oliver S. Hershman, until he becomes 30, when he receives the principal.

The other two parts are given respectively to her daughter, Cecile Boyd Keeney, and to her adopted daughter, Elda Belle Snyder, the latter's share to be held in trust and at her death to go to her children.

To her brother, Samuel H. Boyd, and his wife Leona, the testator bequeathes $50,000. They also are given $10,000, the income designated for support of her brother, William S. Boyd.

Everything is set for another food show benefit for Father Cox at the Triangle Theater, East Liberty, Sunday. Manager W. D. Davis is putting a program together and promises one of the best shows yet given for this worthy cause.

Donations of canned goods and standard package groceries, will, as usual, be accepted as "tickets" and Father Cox appeals for a liberal spirit from those who attend this show as he is urgently in the need of food supplies to carry on his work at Old St. Patrick's.

The show will start at 2 p. m. and run continuously until 11 p. m.

It looks like another big week in the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph drive for subscriptions. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

COMMODITIES RISE ON INFLATION FEAR

Some Are Up 100 Per Cent From Low Marks of Depression.

CHICAGO, May 12—(AP)—Commodity prices were on a high perch today as the farm relief and currency-inflation bill became a law. They had been scared upward by the plans for inflation, which President Roosevelt has said he would use to force prices to prewar averages.

Some basic commodities are already up 100 per cent. from depression lows, such as hides.

Wool prices were substantially higher, the increase amounting to 20 per cent. within a fortnight.

18 PAINTINGS BY ICART ON DISPLAY

By PENELOPE REDD

A collection of 18 paintings by Louis Icart at Kaufmann's will probably be the most popular exhibition of this year if Icart's thousands of admirers hear of it before the show closes on June 3.

Miss Redd

Icart represents a type of French painter, such as Jacob and Domergue, occasionally included in the Carnegie Internationals to the delight of the populace. In the United States, artists of Icart's type do not wander from the profitable pastures of designing magazine covers or wayside murals.

For all they care, the serious painter may reap the non-profit bearing kudos of the critics. Icart, however, represents the French type of artist that garners official honors without detriment to his income-bearing popularity. His colored prints are shown here in conjunction with the paintings which they reproduce.

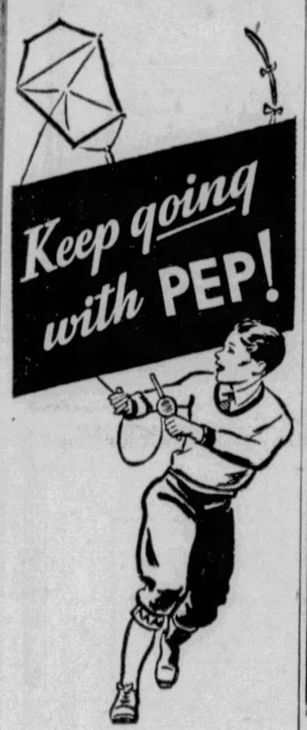
Icart's paintings are cleverly developed around a central theme of white running the gamut of values into gray with details appearing as bright color accents. He expertly evokes a bubble-like paradise of willowy peris in billowy but diaphonous frocks. Blossoms, Russian borzois, Chinese fish, Persian cats, or languid swans, serve as accessories to make even the outdoor world but an extension of the luxurious boudoir.

Icart is the logical descendant of the Watteau-Sargent-Boldini manner of painting beautiful women just a trifle more perfect than nature or their dressmakers have made them. The many will prefer Icart's flair for sweet loveliness as against the few who relish the wry and the sardonic comment on contemporary women as expressed by Icart's colleague, Matisse.

8 U. S. WOMEN BOW TO QUEEN

LONDON, May 18.—(Universal.)—Eight American women were presented to Queen Mary last night at the third court of the season. In the absence of King George, the Duke of York escorted the Queen to the throne room. The King, who has been ill, will not attend tonight's court.

An interesting figure at last night's levee was Prince Chula Chakra Bonge, nephew of the King of Siam. As a prince of the royal blood he walked in the procession with members of the British Royal Family and stood in the court circle around the throne.



OUTDOOR appetites enjoy Kellogg's PEP Bran Flakes. Youngsters who romp. Grown-ups who keep active. They agree on PEP.

Flavor makes PEP popular. The nourishment of ripe wheat satisfies body-needs. Proteins. Iron. Vitamin B. All in these better bran flakes. There is enough bran to be mildly laxative.

Buy PEP from your grocer. Enjoy it often. Always fresh and crisp. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

HOME BUILDING BY CITY URGED

That the city and county should seek loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to build homes on real estate which is at present non-productive is the suggestion of C. C. Hamilton, real estate broker and chairman of the Roosevelt-Independent party.

Hamilton declares that a 6 per cent income can be realized from small homes to be rented to working men.

In letters to City Council and County Commissioners he has suggested that 7,000 non-productive properties owned by the county and 5,000 by the city be used in this manner. Such a program would be self-liquidating, Hamilton declares, and put thousands of men to work.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Causes of Dizzy Spells Are Many and Varied

One of the favorite pastimes of country children is to whirl around in a swing. The rapid rotary motion of the swing is amusing, because at the end of the performance the "whirler" staggers dizzily from the swing, unable to walk straight or stand erect.

Dr. Copeland

To those of mature years, dizziness is far from amusing and apt to cause grave concern that some serious bodily condition exists. Most attacks of dizziness, particularly in the young, are trivial and usually overcome. Of course there are some serious conditions in which dizziness is a symptom, but fortunately these are rare.

The causes of vertigo, as dizziness is called, are many and varied. Almost everyone of us can recall times when we have felt on the verge of falling because as we say, "my head went around."

Autointoxication, indigestion and constipation are the most common causes of dizziness. Eyestrain, wax in the ear, sinus infection, congestion of the larynx or some disturbance of the circulation, following a severe fit of coughing, are all causes of dizziness.

"Meniere's disease" is a distressing form of vertigo caused by involvement of that portion of the inner ear known as the "semi-circular canals."

In this disease there may be slight dizziness or sudden severe attacks lasting from a few minutes to several hours. Ringing, buzzing, throbbing sounds in the ear are common, and occasionally loud noises like explosions, are experienced. In severe attacks there may be nausea, vomiting or loss of consciousness. Treatment of the ear condition will usually afford relief.

As a rule, vertigo disappears when the sufferer lies down. In cases of elderly persons who suffer some arterial trouble the dizziness may be increased by the recumbent position. Sudden changes of position frequently make the dizziness worse.

One who suffers from persistent vertigo should have a thorough physical examination. This should include a careful analysis of the urine.

Sun or heat stroke is often followed by a tendency to dizziness. Severe anemia or the convalescence from some serious illness, affects the normal equilibrium.

Unusually quick or unexpected movements of the body, the rapid ascent or descent of an elevator, or the rocking of a ship, result in dizziness. This may be due to some disturbance of eye origin, or of the semicircular canals of the ear.

Dizziness experienced only while in high places is undoubtedly of nervous origin, and need cause no concern to those affected. If you suffer from persistent vertigo or dizziness, it is wise to consult your doctor. He will reassure you.

Good Old Days' Over-Rated, Says Aged Man

Was life easier for men in the good old days, when ladies tayed home?

Joe claimed it was.

Grandpa, according to Joe, could marry, build him a house and settle down to raising a family, because gals weren't in business and didn't cut the boys out of jobs.

But nowadays, what with gals grabbing all the jobs, a fellow couldn't earn enough to live himself, much less take a wife. So, naturally, he had to go in for Free Love, or be a hermit.

In short, the gals of 1933 were to blame for about everything—to hear Joe tell it.

We didn't agree with him for a minute though we printed his stuff, and we asked how ladies were going to eat if they didn't work.

Now comes grandpa, himself, on the warpath, with plenty of answer.

Dear Miss Robinson:

You certainly hit the nail on the head when you answered that young Smart Alec, who signed himself Joseph and said that women making their own living were responsible for the man of today not marrying.

So he thinks, does he, that life was easier for us men, and that we all got enough to live in style back in the days when women weren't supposed to go out in the rough world and buy their own dinners?

Well I, for one, am sick of these people who think we had such a soft snap in "the old days."

"High wages?" Why, when I got married, I started out on the magnificent sum of a dollar a day. And I had to wait quite some time before I could marry.

HAD TO HELP FAMILY

"Twasn't because some woman was underselling me in the labor market, either, but because I had a mother and two sisters to support. There wasn't a thing they could do, outside of scrubbing and maybe a little sewing. People would have been horrified if they had set out to support themselves.

My father died when my youngest sister was 15 and I was 21. There was a little money left, but it didn't last long, so I had to dig in. Anything else would have been unthinkable.

Even then I was interested in the girl I finally married. She agreed to wait for me. She waited eight years. "But why didn't your sisters marry?" I suppose someone will ask. They did, finally, and Mother went to live with one of them.

But someone had to feed them in the meantime. Nowadays, even under the name of circumstances, they'd have gone to business college and then gone to work. I might not be able to get a thousand dollars a month wages, but what wages I did get I'd have for myself, to build my own life on.

WAGES WERE LOW

Joseph had better study up a little before he tries to tell us that wages were higher before women began working. They weren't. They were much lower. Of course, in some "boom" communities they got pretty high, but boom communities mean high cost of living, too; and when you have the combination of low wages and all the female relatives to feed and clothe, you've got a combination that will keep any man's nose on the grindstone.

Even 30 years ago, thousands of men were raising big families on two and a half a day. Twenty dollars a month was considered plenty for a man to start in on. A hundred a month was an enormous wage.

So I'd advise Joseph to do some real, honest thinking, lose a few of his prejudices and quit building castles in the past. If somebody shoved him back there, he couldn't get out fast enough. I seriously doubt that he'd have the sand to live as we old fellows had to live. He's just trying to make alibis.

I am an old man now, but my memory's good, and I know that life fifty years ago was no snap, any more than it's a snap now. It took spunk then, just as it takes spunk now. Joe had better get some. He'll never amount to much as a man until he does. GRANDPA.

And if that doesn't make some of these Modern Cry Babies feel cheap—I'll pass.

Wives Who Drive or Coddle Mates Draw Fire of Fay King

By FAY KING

Extremes exist in all walks of life. The extreme in wives is to me those wives who are slave drivers or slaves—for success.

I have in mind those few selfish, ambitious women who make matrimony the means to their own goals in life.

They remain childless by choice. Their entire time is devoted to these men, so often of mediocre talents or business abilities, whom these women marry with the sole purpose of driving or coddling them to fame and fortune.

The driver dominates a husband who has an inferiority complex. The coddler humors a husband who has a superiority complex.

By this desperate driving or constant coddling such wives often do advance in life through these husbands.

But happier wives do not envy them.

"Nick" Leaves to Find Ronald and Bring Him to Madge

"That's all right," Nick said grandly, and with a leap of my pulse I wondered if he meant to defy Tony and let me go in search of Ronald.

"She doesn't need to go," Nick went on. "I'll go myself. I know this territory like the palm of my hand, Babe, and I can move so nobody can tell I'm around, while you—the first toad you stepped on, you'd let out a screech, and Jerry and all his friends would come tearing out to see what had struck his camp.

"No, Babe, you sit tight and pretty here, and I'll mosey down the road aways. Now, how will I tell this Ronald if I see him skulking along the road?"

I described Ronald's appearance, and Nick put another question.

"Now, how will he know I'm from you? I suppose I'd better ask his name first."

For a second, panic had me by the throat. If he asked that question, and Ronald should answer Ronald Brixton, what would be Nick's reaction to the fact that I already had given Ronald's name as Cowper?

"I'm afraid he wouldn't give you his right one," I said. "He's just a boy, and a bit melodramatic. But if you say to him, "I have a message for you from your Aunt Madge, if you'll tell me your first name, I'm sure he will reply 'Ronald.' But if you just asked his name he'd stiffen up and either refuse to tell you, or make up a name."

AGREES WITH MADGE

"He wouldn't refuse to tell me, Babe."

"But that's neither here nor there. Your scheme is a good one—you've got a good headpiece on you, Babe—and I'll carry it out. What is it I'm to ask him when he's told me his name?"

"I don't know," I said miserably. "He will want to stay as near Marion as he can. He would go into Jerry's alone, if he wasn't afraid it would make things worse for her."

"Suppose I tell him you want him to come back here with me. Would that do?"

"Yes; he would obey that message."

"Oke!" Nick said, and was striding off when Tony hailed him.

PREPARE TO FLEE

"Ain't you going to head this car the other way?"

"What's the matter with you doing that?" Nick rejoined.

"I don't leave this seat where I am," Tony said sullenly, "so if you're planning on any quick getaway, you'd better climb back in and do your stuff."

"You're the laziest," Nick began, and then added a string of epithets that made me want to put my hands over my ears. Consideration for feminine ears was evidently no part of Nick's creed. But he climbed back into the front seat and expertly headed the car in the other direction, before getting out again.

"Where's the key?" Tony demanded as Nick's feet struck the ground again.

"In the lock, where it should be."

"Give it to me."

"Not on your life; and don't you touch it, either. Can you drive a car, Babe?"

"Yes."

"Then if you hear me yell 'Clear!' you turn that key and start the car. Open the doors, so me and your boy friend, if I find him, can climb in here without wasting a second."

He walked swiftly down the road, his tread as light as that of a leopard. Tony waited only until he was out of hearing before prodding me on the shoulder with a round, hard something that I guessed to be the barrel of a revolver.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Quiet Home Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married at a very early date, having a very quiet wedding at home and leaving immediately afterwards.

I would like to know if I should wear my coat during the ceremony, and whether I wear my coat or not, should I wear gloves? H.

Unless your coat is part of your ensemble, say a silk coat that is the "third piece" of an ensemble, don't wear it at your informal home wedding. And don't wear gloves. You may or may not wear your hat, as you wish, depending on whether you think that it completes the harmony of your costume.

Not With the Fingers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

"A" said it was perfectly right to eat fried chicken with your fingers. Pete said it was entirely wrong; ugly to look at, too. "Your whole face is greasy, your fingers are very soiled, and your napkin is really ruined," he said.

I, Dotty, feel that Pete is right. Please let us know at once.

READER

Hurrah for you and Pete! You've put the case so perfectly, so completely, that I don't need to add any more arguments against this unsightly performance.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

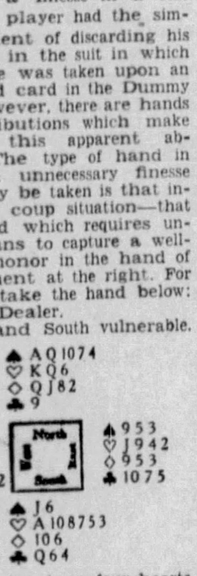
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Grand Coup Plus a Finesse

Most bridge players would probably class as the acme of absurdity a finesse in a suit when the player had the simple expedient of discarding his only loser in the suit in which the finesse was taken upon an established card in the Dummy hand. However, there are hands and distributions which make necesary this apparent absurdity. The type of hand in which an unnecessary finesse may wisely be taken is that involving a coup situation—that is, a hand which requires unusual means to capture a well-guarded honor in the hand of the opponent at the right. For instance, take the hand below:

North, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The contract was four hearts, played by South. Against this contract, West opened the King of clubs, and when the Dummy went down, shifted at once to the diamond suit, cashing his Ace and King. He then led the Ace of clubs, which was ruffed in the Dummy with the 6 of hearts. The hand appeared reasonably simple to the South played at this point. All he required was to find no worse than a 3-1 distribution of the adverse trumps and his contract was made laid down.

However, when the heart King was led, South discovered that East held all the trumps, and thus the only method by which the Knave could be captured was through shortening his own trump holding to the same as that of East and then placing the lead in the Dummy on the eleventh trick. Therefore, in order to carry out this plan, the Queen of diamonds was led from Dummy and ruffed with a small heart. The Dummy was now re-entered by leading a small heart to the Queen, and the second high diamond was led and ruffed. At this point South made his unnecessary finesse, which, however, had now become necessary for the fulfillment of the contract. The spade Knave was led and permitted to hold. A second finesse was taken in the spade suit, and then the Ace of spades was laid down, the good club Queen being discarded and the lead retained in the Dummy, so that the trumps were captured on the twelfth and thirteenth tricks.

Today's Question

Your partner opens the bidding with one heart. Second hand passes. What do you bid, holding:

♠ A 8 6 4 3 ♡ 7 5 ◇ Q 8 6 ♣ 9 3 2

Answer — One spade. The "One-over-One" response in a suit should be preferred to the negative no-trump.

Household Hints

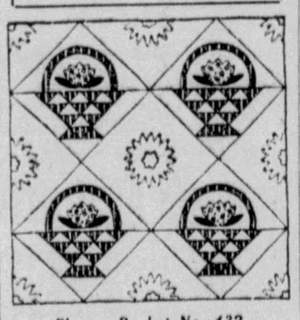
Ammonia and cold water and very little soap will clean matting nicely.

Turnips, if too small to peel and cut up, should be boiled whole in their skins, then the skin can be rubbed off. Small turnips cooked in this way are much sweeter and better flavored and there is no waste.

Never add milk or water to the stuffing for poultry or roasts. It is that which gives the soggy, solid texture to bread filling and takes away the delicacy of the dish. Melted butter should be the only damp ingredient.

When doubtful as to the amount of salt needed for pickling meats, place the water and meat in a pot and drop in a medium-sized potato. Keep adding salt until the potato rises to the top and you will find the brine just right for pickling purposes.

PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Flower Basket No. 432.

By LAURA WHEELER

The patchwork basket as a quilt pattern has proven its popularity through the ages. The basket has been a motif in all manner of decorative design from the earliest days of art. The quilt-maker of long ago was a home-maker. Baskets of flowers and of fruits were as much the work of her hands as the quilts she handed down to us. It was but natural then that she interpreted the basket in her quilts, quaintly making it of triangles in contrasting materials. In this design a simple applique flower adds a touch of contrasting color to the basket. However, the pattern is so designed as to be complete with the applique omitted, in which case the old-time basket alone forms the pattern.

The pattern comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, quilting motif, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for a pattern for this design to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

STAGE STARS -:- Brady Plays 'Svengali' Hopper Gives 'Casey' -:- ON THE AIR

Soong Talks On China's U. S. Link

Two of the most distinguished personalities of the American stage—William A. Brady, Sr., and DeWolf Hopper—share the spotlight as Rudy Vallee's guests tonight on WCAE at 8 in a revival of music and drama of yesteryear.

Mr. Brady, portraying Svengali in a scene from George Du Maurier's success of the 90's, "Trilby," and Mr. Hopper, reciting his hardy perennial, "Casey at the Bat," are supported by Irene Franklin, vaudeville headliner; Cecile Sherman, soprano; the Giersdorf Sisters, singing trio, and the International Male Quartet. Rudy's special contribution is a medley of old tunes highlighted by the Floradora "Tell Me Pretty Maiden."

Dr. Soong Talks

Switching to international affairs, the aerial spotlight focuses—at 11:15 p. m. on WJAS—on Dr. T. V. Soong, Chinese Finance Minister and one of the many dignitaries conferring with President Roosevelt. Speaking from Washington, Dr. Soong discusses the relations between China and the United States.

On KDKA at 10:30, a first-hand look at the real Russia of today is to be given by a lawyer, and a prominent businessman. The speakers are Jerome Davis, author of "The New Russia;" William Curtis Bok, son of the late Edward Bok, and Edward A. Filene, founder of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Although it previously had been announced that Gladys Swarthout, Metropolitan's beautiful mezzo-soprano, wouldn't high-hat Tin Pan Alley's blues and ballads in her new series, the initial program, listed on KDKA at 10, includes only operatic and light concert selections. The supporting concert orchestra is directed by Frank Black.

Another operatic songbird to bow tonight with a recital series is Maude Rooney, formerly of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company, who has been signed for a weekly schedule with Howard Barlow's Orchestra — WJAS at 10:45.

Fay Wray Guest

Fay Wray, of film fame, occupies the California Melodies guest spot at 10:15 on WJAS—inaugurating the West Coast program's new schedule. It formerly was heard Tuesdays at 9:30.

The Retail Research Bureau's WWSW program, "A New Deal for the Home," has M. Louis Jousse, chef de cuisine at the Hotel Schenley, as guest speaker at 6:15 tonight.

A special Poppy Day dramatic program and a brief talk by Henry F. Farquard, commander of the Illinois department of the V. F. W., are listed for Rin-Tin-Tin dialers at 8:30 on KDKA.

The KQV Harlemites, known via Victor recordings as the Washboard Rhythm Kings, move to the 7:30 period beginning tonight.

Stephen Pillischer, internationally-known violinist who bowed several weeks ago to make a one-time appearance during a brief visit to Pittsburgh only to go on a weekly schedule, winds up his series on WJAS at 9:15.

Cass Ward Whitney returns to KDKA at 6 p. m. for a new dinner-hour song series.

Tells

Fay Wray, screen actress, is interviewed on WJAS at 10:15 tonight as a highlight of the weekly "California Melodies."

Tomorrow, five stations will carry the playlet on the following schedule: WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., 1:30 p. m.; WHBC, Canton, O., 2 p. m.; WKBN, Youngstown, O., 4 p. m.; WALR, Zanesville, O., 5 p. m., and WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15 p. m.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

That recipe printed for M. I. B. to take out grease spots from the wall paper was, according to Bill Corbett, of Castle Shannon, all right for wax but not so effective on grease spots. Here is his method:

Mix English pipe clay and cold water to a paste. Apply it to the grease spots at night. Next morning brush off the dry clay and your grease spot is gone.

P. S.—I've never tried it so no guarantee goes with this.

Radio Books Hill-Billy Dramas

By AIRCASTER

The observant gentleman who wrote that moving tune, "I Like Mountain Music," may not have been aware of it, but he was voicing the sentiment of a substantial portion of the radio audience.

Broadcasting executives are daily being made more aware of the popularity of hill billy ballads, though the fact hasn't stirred their melodic impulses. But there are some who are willing to venture that hill billy music is the vertebrae of our native folk music.

A phenomenal swing toward the simpler tunes fraught with primitive drama and comedy of the mountaineers may have had something to do with the newest idea of NBC to glorify further this primal poesy by booking a series of mountain song dramatizations, which, no doubt, will prove highly effective as episodic heart-jerkers. So if you have tears, prepare to shed them initially on May 22.

At that time Ethel Park Richardson will have made ready the first of her mountain melodramas based on "Blue-Eyed Ellen." Subsequent episodes will deal with the classic Missouri custom of "Kicking My Dog Around," "The Engineer's Chee-ild" and other tearful legends, with benefit of a cast, dialect and a trio which will include Frank Luther.

Rubinoff Returning

Revision on the Rubinoff Sunday broadcast has begun again. Walter Kelly, the Virginny judge, is off, and Leo Carrillo, the versatile man of the movies, is on.

Incidentally, Rubinoff comes back home to Pittsburgh in a velly, velly big way next week when he brings his orchestra to town for a full week's engagement at the Willows beginning Monday night.

For the first time the hometowners will have an opportunity to see Dave's network band—reorganized into a dance orchestra—in action. With the maestro will be another Pittsburgher, Andy Eich, who toots the trumpet, and that new $100,000 Stradivarius. The band will broadcast from the Willows over WWSW.

Other network organizations booked for the Oakmont play spot with WWSW broadcasts are George Olsen, June 9 and 10; Isham Jones, June 15, and Johnny Johnson, at a date as yet unannounced.

Paul Gannon, WCAE tenor, opens a three-day engagement at the Enright Theater Saturday with Pianist Ralph Federer and Katharine Rickert, violinist.

Oh, Sharlie!

Howard Claney, who introduces Jack Pearl at his weekly fabrications, is exhibiting a letter from a Cleveland listener.

If one is willing to believe this eavesdropper, he attended church last Sunday and was fascinated by the clergyman's stirring account of Jonah's encounter with the Biblical whale. At the close of the pastor's narrative, which brought Jonah from the whale's interior, an incredulous member of the congregation blurted:

"Vass you dere, reverend?"

Variety is the spice of life, the executives of the NBC keep reiterating as they zip one show and substitute another in their efforts to straighten out a summer schedule, and now Irene Bordoni, who started out with such fanfare over WJZ-KDKA just recently, finds herself off the kilocycles with her May 20 broadcast.

Globe-Trotter Schedule

Flashing the latest news direct from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms, Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, goes on the air daily over WCAE at 9:05 a. m., and WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

TRAIN KILLS BOY CHASING BALL

John Lutz, 14, a Gladstone Junior High School pupil, is dead today from the injuries sustained yesterday when he ran into a shifting engine at the Baltimore and Ohio Station at Hazelwood, according to a Coroner's report.

He ran unknowingly into the side of the locomotive in pursuit of a ball with which he was catching with another schoolmate, it was said. He lived at 431 Baldwin road, Hays.

WAIFS TO STAY IN ORPHANAGE

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 18.—Dorothy and Helen Matheny, 6 and 4 years old respectively, two motherless girls who were abandoned by an unknown man in a bus terminal here three weeks ago, apparently will remain charges of the Washington County Children's Home, it was indicated today.

A thorough checkup has failed to unearth any trace of their father, who was reported living in Cincinnati. Their mother is dead.

Many applications for adoption of the pair have been received at the Children's Home from both Allegheny and Washington counties. These have been held on file, in the hope that the father will be discovered and that he may be forced to care for his children. Mrs. Essie Sutherland, matron at the home, said both children have become acclimated to their new surroundings and have expressed a wish to reside there with their baby dolls.

OHIO COAL RATE RAISE ORDERED

The Ohio Public Utilities Commision today had specific orders from the Interstate Commerce Commision to allow an increase in rail rates on coal shipments within the state of Ohio. Pennsylvania coal operators had asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to increase the Ohio rates so they might compete again with Ohio coal fields for Cleveland markets.

The order was made by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday in response to the Ohio Commision's refusal to permit increases.

Addresses also will be made by Mayor John S. Herron, Judge Ralph H. Smith and J. Russell Craig, of Philadelphia.

HERRON, COYNE FLAYED BY COUNCIL CANDIDATE

POLITICS

Philadelphia to Add To State Ferment

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Philadelphia is in a fair way to add to the political ferment stirring in Pennsylvania, and the scars of a municipal fight this fall are not apt to heal by next spring with its statewide primary.

Mr. Shields

Willis Hadley, who resigned this week as city controller, has been succeeded by S. Davis Wilson through appointment by Gov. Pinchot. In itself that might mean little. Hadley and Wilson have fought the Vare organization in the Eastern city, and Hadley has won his campaigns despite the animosity of the regulars.

Wilson has been something of a stormy petrel, making the bombs for Hadley to touch off. In his own right, however, he swings few votes, though he was active for Gov. Pinchot in 1930 and headed a Republican Roosevelt League in 1932. However, he stirs things up, and the Vare organization is in no position to stand too much quivering.

Held Together by Personality of Vare

It is only held together now by the personality of Vare himself, and he must give orders with his own voice to have them properly heeded. There are groups in the organization who do not relish taking orders from sub-lieutenants, though Harry Davis, heading the executive committee of the city committee, did manage things with fair success at Harrisburg. He did so, however, only because he was recognized as the direct representative of Vare.

There are at hand the materials for revolt, flaring even with Vare at the helm, and certain to break into a chaotic struggle should his hand be removed.

Significant in the Wilson promotion was the presence of former Mayor Harry Mackey at the swearing in ceremonies. Mackey fell out with the Vare organization when he tried to come back politically as a candidate for the Legislature, but apparently he has not been stopped in his activity.

There have been reports that he might manage Gov. Pinchot's campaign next spring should the executive seek the Senate seat of David A. Reed. To that suggestion Mr. Mackey has no comment, realizing it is early to discuss next spring.

But, along with Wilson, he says he is "ready to join in the support of any good candidate for office." He added that Pennsylvania is participating in the changing trend of thought toward public officials and their responsibility to the citizenship generally.

Local Primary Fight To Excel Philadelphia's

It is a foregone conclusion that Philadelphia will have primary fights next fall, though not on as grand a scale as here in Pittsburgh, for the eastern city has no Mayor to choose this year. It is as certain a conclusion that Gov. Pinchot will roil the waters as much as possible. That was one of the considerations back of the Wilson appointment.

Congressman Charles I. Faddis, of Waynesburg, according to information from Washington, is giving some thought to becoming a candidate for the Democratic Senatorial nomination next year. World War veterans are understood to be urging him onward because of his vote against the Roosevelt economy program so far as it touched the revision of allotments to veterans.

Should Mr. Faddis be a candidate there undoubtedly would result a stirring fight in the Democratic primary. He is on the outs with the faction headed by Joseph F. Guffey, and was one of those who endeavored to have Commander John D. Pennington removed as prohibition administrator for Pennsylvania, the job to be awarded to a deserving Democrat.

As a counter-thrust to this demand, some of the members of the Guffey contingent contend that Mr. Faddis has recommended some postmaster appointments in his district which had a distinct Republican tinge.

Three Mentioned for Local Postmastership

No break in the Democratic patronage jam will be announced on the visit of Postmaster General James A. Farley here June 3, according to informed Democrats. Farley will meet many of the local patriots, but such matters are not settled upon such occasions. That heavy business is done farther away from noise and commotion.

It will probably be mid-June before changes are made in the local federal building, as the adjournment of Congress is not anticipated before that time, and no action is expected from the President so long as he has the national legislators on his hands.

It is a fairly safe assumption, however, that Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence will become collector of internal revenue, succeeding David B. Heiner, and that the United States attorney's job will go to some one outside of Allegheny County, perhaps from Fayette.

Three men are mentioned prominently for postmaster, Burgess William Turner, of Wilkinsburg; John Murray and Stephen Botkin, already employed in the postoffice. Mr. Farley's announcement that worthy postmasters will be retained was well meant, but the pressure from eager Democrats will be too strong to be withstood in the case of Pittsburgh.

Heart Attack Kills Natrona Engineer

James McMeans, 55, an engineer for the Pennsylvania Salt Company, died suddenly at his home, 8 North Canal street, Natrona, today, the coroner reported. Death was attributed to heart failure.

Synopsis

Having described Harry K. Thaw's persistent wooing, despite his knowledge of her love for Stanford White, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw tells in today's installment of her life story how she was finally "talked into" marriage by Thaw's mother and his friends. Thaw was wildly jealous of White, Evelyn says, and once drew a revolver when he saw the architect in a New York hotel dining room.

CHAPTER XIII.

After the gun incident at the St. Regis, when I had to summon all my knowledge of Harry Thaw's weaknesses to persuade him to put away the revolver he was fondling while glaring at Stanford White and his wife sitting across the room from us, every nerve in my young body was in jitters.

As soon as possible, Mrs. Caine and I persuaded Harry to leave, and we went to the theater.

Pulling me by the sleeves, Mrs. Caine hustled me at the first moment into the rest-room, so we could be alone for a moment. She didn't know anything about Harry Thaw's hatred for Stanford White, anything about Stanford's vital—to be fatal—part in my young life.

"What's it all about?" she asked. "What upset him so at the St. Regis? Why did Harry have that gun in his lap?"

She was such a lovely person, and so unsuspecting, that I couldn't tell her the whole story. I thought up a plausible yarn.

"He's got some wild idea that a gang follows him, that his life is in danger. The man he considers responsible for it happened to be dining at the St. Regis with his wife. Oh, Mrs. Caine, I'm frightened beyond words."

'Always Bluffing'

Then Mrs. Caine showed that she, in her motherly way, certainly did not know Harry Thaw.

"Oh," she said, "Harry would never do anything like that. He would never go that far. That was just a display of bravado on his part. He would never use a gun. You know he's always bluffing, pretending to be a great fighter, but would never use a gun.

"Why, I don't believe he even knows how to shoot straight."

"That's true," I agreed, to end the discussion. "He was just showing off."

Later we talked it over at great length—Mrs. Caine and I—and decided that Harry was simply indulging in his usual love of display; that it was a mere gesture of bravado and bluff, but that I would have to be careful and do my best to avoid a chance meeting between the two men.

What with cases of nerves and Harry's tantrums, my health was failing instead of improving. Doctors advised an operation. Harry called in Dr. Clement Cleveland, an eminent surgeon of that period.

Again I found myself at the exclusive and expensive private sanatorium in Thirty-third street, in the old Waldorf

TUBES' UPKEEP TO BE SETTLED

County Public Works Director Thomas O. Hasley has been directed by the County Commissioners to confer with the Pittsburgh Public Works Director, Edward G. Lang, to settle responsibility for maintaining the Armstrong Tunnels. The county has received numerous complaints of lax maintenance, which are to be put before Lang.

In giving the order to Hasley, the County Commissioners declared the city had not paid the county for its share of the construction cost, and maintained it was the duty of the city to maintain, police and light the tubes.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 18.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say, this man Roosevelt not only makes Congress roll over and play dead, but by golly he made this tough guy Hitler promise to bring sticks out of the water. Is there no end to this man's cleverness? Course there is one thing about Europe, you can never believe 'em the first time. They will agree to anything till it comes time to sign up.

Will Rogers

This might be just the ideal time to stop a war. For nobody has anything to fight one with. Like disarmanent, it's not done for humanitarian reasons, it's only done for economic reasons. The whole thing seems too good to be true, but the whole world is changing, so maybe they are going to turn human.

Yours, Will.

Rodgers Improves; Hiccoughs 14 Days

W. B. Rodgers, former executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Emergency Relief Board, was slightly improved today as he lay in Allegheny General Hospital hiccoughing for the fourteenth consecutive day, according to his wife. Mrs. Rodgers said that Dr. W. T. Mitchell and his associates were making tests today to determine, if possible, the cause of the seizure.

'Springs' Manacles Closed Since They Foiled Escapist

Houdini could not open the famous Manchester handcuffs, but to William H. McCaffrey, amateur magician, it was a simple matter.

The "unopenable" cuffs, made years ago by a Manchester, England, locksmith, in answer to a challenge of the famous escape artist, played an important part in the life of Houdini. The cuffs opened with both a key and a combination.

Houdini, the story goes, obtained the key by subterfuge, but could not open the combination. After working with them for two hours on a London stage, he forced them off unopened, injuring his hands.

These handcuffs, unopened since they were snapped on Houdini's wrists that memorable day in London, are now in Pittsburgh. Hence the story.

McCaffrey was at the home of T. H. Heuber, 241 Atwood street, last night, helping him with arrangements for the national convention of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, to be held at Beaver Falls in June. He examined the handcuffs for a moment, snapped them open. How did he do it? McCaffrey explained:

"It must have been by a sixth sense: perhaps the spirit of Houdini communicated with me."

But McCaffrey, who is national vice president of the Society of American Magicians, and lives at 11 Hawthorne avenue, Ingram, would not divulge the real method. Like all good magicians, he keeps his secrets to himself.

MAYOR PUPPET OF BOSS, SAYS BAILEY

Campaign in 13th Ward Brings Dual Attack On 'Machine'

With a dual attack on Mayor John S. Herron and State Senator James J. Coyne, James F. Bailey, the Tenth Ward councilmanic candidate, laid down his "Anti-Coyne-Anti-Coyneism" platform in the Mayor's own ward, the Thirteenth, last night.

Before an audience of 300 in the Homewood-Carnegie Library auditorium Bailey attacked Herron's 20 years' service as a member of city council, declaring that taxes had increased 125 per cent during his service there. He said:

"Herron's record on taxation is bad—it is very bad. And remember Herron is Coyne's hand-picked Mayor."

He defined Herron as a puppet Mayor, with Coyne pulling the strings, and repeated his charge:

"Herron is owned day and night, body and soul, boots and breeches by Coyne."

He charged that Herron's issue of a permit to the Monaca Club to operate as a beer garden was a notice that the club would run in spite of Judge Patterson and the entire judicial bench. Of the permit, he said:

"That one outrageous, disgraceful act should defeat Herron for Mayor. Coyne has already broken one Mayor and he is now going to break his puppet Mayor."

He continued:

"Herron cannot be elected mayor. No man, hand-picked by Coyne can be elected mayor of Pittsburgh in 1933. I do not believe that any candidate wearing the Coyne tag can be elected to any office this year. I cannot believe that the people of this city are going to turn over their government, their schools, their police department to Coyne and his crew of "night riders" and ballot box cheaters."

Of Herron's new appointments, he said:

"When Herron adds a few reputable citizens to Council and his cabinet it reminds one of the old saying: 'When the devil was sick the devil a monk would be.' Coyne and his 'night riders' are now singing a little ditty entitled 'Let's be good until the election is over.'"

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, noted for his efforts at vote reform legislation, in an address charged the worst evil in Pennsylvania was the padding of registration lists.

CITES REGISTRATION EVILS

He declared the remedy of the evil was a permanent registration law, the type of which, he said, was turned down by the present Legislature.

He charged that the pending legislation regarding registration laws, if signed by the Governor, would be worse than the present system "if that can be imagined." He declared the original measure to improve registration conditions was mutiliated in legislative committees.

Lawrence J. Frazer presided.

2 FIRE CHIEFS IN DRAVOSBURG

Another chapter in the squabble between the volunteer firemen of Dravosburg and the Borough Council was written last night when Council elected John Sargent as fire chief.

He was named to succeed Chief Charles Thomas, whom Council ordered fired several weeks ago after he had been fined $10 for turning in a false fire alarm at the county airport.

Firemen, maintaining Council has nothing to do with the fire department, ignored the Council's request that Thomas be dropped. Instead they re-elected him as chief. Council took a hand last night and named Sargent.

Homestead Workers Face Pay Delay

Examination of the borough accounts last night revealed that between 40 and 50 employes of Homestead face the prospect of a delayed pay day.

Only about half of the $6,500 needed to meet the payroll is in the treasury.

The employes have been paid since May 1 with money borrowed from the water department.

No More Wars, No More Bright Blue Uniforms

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

With England and America united for peace, it looks as if the other nations have got to stop heckling from the nickel seats.

We hate to see the Marines go because they looked so nice in their blue trousers with the red stripes.

But war must stop. We face the future serenely, knowing that we cannot fail with the Kellogg-Briand pact and a spoonful of bicarb of soda.

Our Army is small enough to get a sound thrashing in a newsboys' home. Our Navy might dominate the boat lake in Central Park.

And the Marines, who were first to fight, have got to fight to finish sixth or seventh.

All of which proves that America is not an aggressor nation. We're just a good, big, stalwart giant with a lisp.

GOLF PICKETING CHARGE DENIED

W. C. Earnest, Jr., vice president of the Allegheny County Parks Golfers' Association, today denied pickets had been placed at the new County Office Building to dissuade persons from paying $20 for golf permits in North and South parks.

Earnest said:

"The County Commissioners have tried to discredit the organization at every turn and now they are accusing the golfers of 'picketing' the County building. This is not true. This picketing accusation is a very weak excuse for not selling the permits."

Over protest of the association, the Commissioners boosted the fee from $10 to $20.

BANKER HURT IN COLLISION

George L. Gearing, 70, president of the Gearing Lumber Company and vice president of the Carrick Bank, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital today suffering from body bruises, after his car collided with a fire truck at South Eighteenth street extension and Arlington street. He lives at 136 The Boulevard, Carrick.

The truck from No. 21 Engine Company was en route to the home of William Martin, 2433 Cobden street for a fire started by a painter's torch, that caused $15 damage, firemen reported. Gearing's car and the fire truck were slightly damaged.

Cent Racketeers Make Debut in Streets Here

The "penny" racket is the latest thing among panhandlers, according to Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren.

Instead of begging nickels and dimes, as in former days, they ask only a penny on the theory that the greater number of contributions will make up for the meager amount, Murren said.

Penny beggars are common where crowds assemble, Murren reports, particularly outside Forbes Field following a ball game.

SHOW 'MASHER' GIVEN FINE

Accused of being a "masher," Irving Cahan, 26, of 5894 Hobart street, a chiropodist, was fined $5 or 10 days in jail by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today.

Cahan testified he accosted Mrs. Robert Senef, wife of the assistant manager of a downtown theater, in the theater because he had mistaken her for a patient. Mrs. Senef said he sat beside her while she waited for her husband, placed a hand on her shoulder and asked who she was waiting for. When she ran from him, he pursued, she said.

Senef testified ushers went to his wife's assistance and Cahan ran two blocks before he was caught.

Fisher Pledges Support To Roosevelt Program

Active support to President Roosevelt on every plan bearing on business revival, particularly those for the renewal of industrial and commercial life here, today was pledged by former Gov. John S. Fisher as he assumed office as president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

Despite a difference in their political parties, Fisher told Chamber members gathered at their annual meeting:

"I will support and will ask every member to support every plan submitted by Roosevelt. Pittsburgh has an important place in the nation's recovery. The Chamber should bend every effort toward looking after the healthy condition that has made it a great city. Perhaps the solution is in our own hands."

AARON SCORES FALSE SCHOOL ECONOMIES

Pittsburgh schools were cited as having greater freedom from political interference than in any other city as Marcus Aaron, president of the Board of Education, today spoke before the delegates to the National Association of Public School Business Officials' convention at the William Penn Hotel.

False economies and tax millage rates set at a low figure for political reasons were condemned by Mr. Aaron. Holding democracy will endure only if citizens learn to think clearly and correctly, he said:

"Recently in every community throughout the land a small group crassly ignorant of what it is all about, thinking through their emotions and not through reason, seem willing to assume that the schools will continue some how or other, even though neglected for a period of years."

Officers elected by the convention were President, Joseph Miller, Jr., secretary New York City Board of Education; vice president, James J. Ball, Denver; directors, R. W. Hibbert, St. Louis, and Paul H. Scholz, San Antonio, Tex. John S. Mount and Henry W. Huston, both of Trenton, were renamed secretary and treasurer.

PROTEST HIRING PHILA. EXPERT

Two protests against the hiring of a Philadelphia engineer to advise the County Commissioners on the advisability of borrowing $20,000,000 from the federal government have been received at the office of the Commissioners. Charles Haydock, the Philadelphia engineer, was recently engaged at the rate of $35 a day and expenses.

The first protest came from the Monarch Club of Pittsburgh. George T. Pettay, secretary, said the club was opposed to the hiring of an out-of-town engineer while there were many competent men here. A similar protest was received from E. N. Jones, local publisher.

Chairman C. C. McGovern defended the board's action by stating that Haydock was not engaged in any engineering capacity, but rather to advise the Commissioners as to how application for a federal loan should be made.

GIVES HUSBAND BAD RECORD

When Joseph Pirincin, 29, of Thirty-ninth street, was before Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker on a liquor charge, he was confronted by a "character witness" he did not anticipate. It was his wife, who told the court:

"Judge, he deserted me and our two children; writes 'numbers' and sells booze and said he was not afraid of the law."

Just before the wife appeared Pirincin had pleaded guilty of transporting 11 five-gallon cans of moonshine whisky on Gearing street, June 1, 1932.

Recluse Leaves Nephew $5,000,000

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—(INS.)—Miss Margaret Keith, 60, millionaire recluse who killed herself recently and left strange instructions for her funeral, bequeathed nearly her entire estate of $5,000,000 to a nephew, Albert A. Allen, Jr., Central Point, Ore., it was disclosed today with filing of the will for probate.

My Own Life Story By Evelyn Nesbit Thaw

neighborhood. This time, however, I occupied the best suite—a large main room with private bath and sun parlor.

An Operation

Dr. Cleveland, after a week of observation, told me I was suffering from adhesions which resulted from my previous operation for appendicitis, and that I must undergo a second operation. So I went under the knife. I was in the sanatorium for about six weeks.

A telephone at my bedside—almost an unheard-of luxury in those days—was supplied by Harry. He left a standing order with the Waldorf florist to keep my room banked with beautiful potted azaleas and other flowers. He made arrangements with Oscar, the famous Waldorf chef, to supply me with anything I desired. So when I reached the convalescent stage, I kept a corps of waiters busy bringing heavily laden trays of specially cooked favorite dishes, and what a pretty bill Thaw had to pay!

In two weeks I consumed $154 worth of beefsteak alone—the steak being used to make delicious French broth. I also kept the nurses filled with champagne until one of the doctors walked in one day and said:

"Young lady, what are you trying to do to this institution? All the nurses are feeling too good to work. What with roast partridge and champagne cup, they'll never be the same again."

My day-nurse had been so good to me that I wanted Harry to give her some sort of special present. He bought her a diabrooch at Tiffany's.

And, believe me, those doctors and the hospital charged him plenty, which is as it should be, Harry paid and paid cheerfully (then). That was one side of his character—lavish generosity. If only he had possessed one-tenth that amount of tolerance!

When I left the hospital I took a small apartment on Madison avenue. Then Harry told me his mother was coming to New York especialaly to see me. He had told her all about me, he said.

I trembled at the idea of meeting Mother Thaw, even without knowing anything about her. I was amazed, and I couldn't conceive of why she should want to see me.

She came to New York—and one afternoon Harry brought her to my apartment.

Thaw's Mother

She was a white-haired woman who must have been handsome in her youth.

She did her utmost to be gracious and affable and I could see that she was surprised and pleased with me. I used no make-up in those days, only a little powder—for the simple reason that I didn't need rouge and lipstick. My lips were naturally a vivid red. I didn't smoke.

"My son is very much in love with you, Evelyn," she said. "He has told me all about you, and I wish you would marry him.

"He has always been a trial, a thorn in my side, but I have great hopes for him now that he has fallen in love and wants to settle down and lead a quiet, normal life.

"Since he loves you so much, it would make me very happy to see him settled and contented, to have him live at home in Pittsburgh instead of in New York or Paris or romping around the globe. What about you? How do you feel toward my son? Do you love him?"

I couldn't bring myself to answer "yes" to the last question, so I told her I was fond of Harry, that I felt exceedingly sorry for him, but that if he had told her the truth about me, he must have told her my ideas on that subject. I had no ambitions in that direction, still loved the stage, but my health for the past two years had kept me from the theater. I added that perhaps it might be best for me to marry and settle down.

"If you don't marry Harry," she interrupted, "it will wreck his life completely. He will go back to Paris and begin his dissipated life there all over again. Marriage and an interest in some work at home will be the making of him.

"It's the one chance he has. He has caused me so many sleepless nights, has been such a great trial, but he assured me that if you would only marry him he would be happy and contented. He says he will give up his wild life and live in Pittsburgh. It will take a great load off my mind, dear."

Evelyn Agrees

Mother Thaw smiled and beamed on me. She held my hands in hers and said she hoped we would marry soon and come to live with her at the old homestead.

This episode left me somewhat bewildered and uncertain. That I should marry Harry Thaw and go and live with his mother in Pittsburgh presented a new problem. If only I had been in love with somebody else, some other man whom I could have married! I might have settled down and passed the rest of my life in contented obscurity. But this was something which was not to be! The one man I did love, Stanford White, was beyond reach.

My indecision—which was largely a matter of the date, since I had promised Mother Thaw I would marry her son, set Thaw to work on other lines. He went to Mrs. Caine, to May MacKenzie, to William Sturgis and various other friends, enlisting their aid.

Mrs. Caine, being a strong booster of marriage, did her best to rush me. So did May MacKenzie, although she was a confirmed old maid, even at her age. They all said:

"It will make a man of Harry."

May MacKenzie was funny, too. Pretending to use a lorgnette, she strutted and said:

"When you are Mrs. Harry Kendall Thaw, of Pittsburgh, and you come to New York once in a while to do a little shopping, will you condescend to notice a mere chorus-girl? Or will you turn up your nose and say: 'My word, do such common people really exist?'"

"Oh rats, May," I laughed. "I could never be that sort. What's more, if I do get down to the point of marrying him, they will have a hard time dragging me to social affairs. That sort of thing would drive me to the point of frenzy. I couldn't stand it. Rising socially means nothing in my young life."

'Talked Into It'

In the end I let myself be talked into it.

There had been so much unpleasant notoriety regarding Thaw and myself on our arrival from the last European trip, so much talk of a marriage in the newspapers, that many people imagined us already married.

All that unpleasantness had been agonizing to my mother, and I realized it. But by this time Thaw had succeeded in definitely separating us, because my mother was an obstacle to his schemes.

At this time, you must remember, I knew nothing about his private detectives, his secret, hidden life, beyond what I had observed at Schloss Katzenstein.

Well, anyway, I married him.

Thaw went to Pittsburgh in advance, because he had to get some special license to take care of my "under age" technicality. After all I had been through, I was still not of age.

The night before I left New York I dined at an Italian garden restaurant down in Greenwich Village with Mrs. Caine. It was a lovely spring evening. As we were dining early, it was still daylight when I drove down Fifth avenue in an electric hansom. En route I was hailed by a young society man who had often sent me flowers in my "Wild Rose" days. I stopped the cab.

"Where are you off to, Evelyn, he asked.

"To dinner."

"Why not dine with me?"

"Impossible."

"Impossible?" he echoed with raised eyebrows.

"Yes," I replied. "This is the end of all my dinner and supper parties. Never again will you see me at any parties or even on the stage."

"What's the idea?" he asked.

"Oh, you'll soon learn," I said and drove away.

And so I thought, as I drove down the avenue—"this is the end of my girlhood. From now on I will be a sedate married woman. A Thaw of Pittsburgh."

It filled me with many conflicting reactions.

Next morning I arrived in Pittsburgh. Harry met me at the East Liberty Station and we drove directly to "Lyndhurst," his mother's home.

A bride-so-soon-to-be—and I was scared, with a prophetic sense of descending doom over me instead of the ecstatic impatience and rosy prospects of a young girl in normal circumstances at the threshold of the great adventure of her life.

GROUP ASSAILS TRADE BODY

The Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade was on record today as condemning officers of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce for their "anti-social policies" in opposing old age pension and minimum wage laws.

In a recent issue of the commerce chamber's official bulletin, the chamber cited as among its "achievements" blocking the passage in the Legislature of these measures.

A resolution assailing the commerce chamber for its "great pride" in its attitude was passed at a recent meeting of the Twenty-seventh Ward body and a copy ordered sent to the Allied Boards of Trade.

BAN 'TAX WORK' IN SHARPSBURG

Steps to prevent exploitation of unemployed residents by persons of means of Sharpsburg in working out their taxes in 1933 were taken last night when the Borough Council voted the work privilege applied only to 1932 taxes.

The charge that citizens able to pay were employing jobless men to work out their taxes for $1.50 to $2.00 a day for work which they in turn were given credit for $4 was made recently by Councilman John J. Lennon.

The borough budget was fixed at $202,000 with the 10 mill tax levy unchanged.

JAILED FOR TAX, SIX RELEASED

BROOKVILLE, Pa., May 18.—(AP.)—County authorities announced last night that all but one of the seven Knox Township citizens, arrested for non-payment of taxes, have been released.

Friends settled the amounts owed by the six. Joseph Martin is still held.

The group was arrested several days ago upon complaint of W. C. Thompson, tax collector, who pointed out that unless 90 per cent of his accounts are collected he will be unable to obtain a bond or 1933 tax duplicates.

No further arrests have been made.

Widow Given Life In Ward's Death

CROWN POINT, Ind., May 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Daisy Harmon, a widow who poisoned her 13-year-old ward to spite his mother, pleaded guilty to a charge of second degree murder yesterday and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Harmon confessed she administered poison to her ward, Anthony Braubender, in a glass of milk. The boy was placed in her custody a year ago at the request of his mother, Mrs. William Fox, of Hammond.

Troopers Chased From Ill Child With Broom

READING, May 18.—(AP.)—They called in the state police, a doctor, an ambulance, and two nurses to take 12-year-old Edna Moser, of Mertstown, to a hospital, but Edna still is at home.

Elmer Moser yesterday called Dr. Charles Smith to treat his child. The physician found she had scarlet fever and called an ambulance and nurses.

But Mrs. Moser with a broom shooed away the doctor and her husband after she learned Edna was to be taken from home.

Two state troopers were called. Their arguments also failed to move Mrs. Moser, so the troopers, the doctor, the ambulance and the nurses went their various ways.

'FIX' OF LIQUOR CASE CHARGED

Alderman Robert H. Logan and Constable Earl R. Sams, Negroes, of the Fifth Ward, were on trial in Criminal Court today on charges of misbehavior in office, preferred by Abe Feldman, recently ousted deputy constable. The case began late yesterday before Visiting Judge R. L. Hildebrand, of Lawrence County.

Feldman and Hyman Shalansky, another ousted deputy, raided a still at 1259 Hemans street July 2 and arrested two men. Feldman charges the men were released the same day by Sams, on advice of Logan, without a hearing.

Feldman testified a man unknown to him had "fixed" the case. Assistant District Attorney James Geltz is prosecuting and Attorney Harry A. Estep is defending the case.

WOMEN VOTERS FOR OLD AGE PENSIONS

The Pennsylvania League of Women Voters, in convention at Hotel Schenley, today decided to campaign for the submission of unemployment insurance and old age pension legislation to the voters of the state.

The delegates also approved action taken against sweatshops, improved Juvenile Court and probation precedure and regulation of child labor.

CHILD HEALTH STUDIED

State and county programs for child health and welfare also will receive the attention of the state organization. A proposal submitted for legislation providing the right of married women to maintain separate legal domiciles was voted down.

Miss Charlotte Carr, of the State epartment of Labor and Industry, was questioned by Mrs. J. O. Miller why more employers weDre not prosecuted for sweatshop operations. Miss Carr replied that the violations were in the amount of wages paid and not the length of hours. The workers, paid by piecework, sought longer hours to overcome small wages, she said.

URGES ROOSEVELT O. K.

The league was asked to support President Roosevelt's good-neighbor program at the luncheon by James Oliver Murdock, assistant legal adviser of the Department of State. He said:

"The success of the world peace movement is dependent on a large aggressive peace party. The women of America alone can build 'up this new psychology of peace in the United States."

Mrs. David Chandler Prince, of Swarthmore, was nominated for president without opposition. The election was to close the convention today. Other nominations without opposition included: Vice presidents, Miss Gertrude Ely, Bryn Mawr; Mrs. J. O. Miller, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Conyers Reed, Villa Nova; Mrs. R. What Are You Going To Do About It?

As state after state falls in line for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment the doom of the liquor racketeer draws nearer.

Prohibition—as almost everybody now concedes—was the racketeer's bonanza.

The criminal element that garnered the lawless profits of prohibition existed in two general classes. They were the beer barons and the bootleggers.

The return of legal beer has ruined the beer barons—so much so that some of them are trying to "muscle in" on the legal business, and here and there throughout the country a few of their desperadoes hi-jack a brewery truck now and then.

These are evils to be rigidly repressed. Legal beer—paying its just taxes to government and bringing back temperance—must be KEPT FREE from racketeering and racketeers' tricks.

And meanwhile repeal must be completed so as to dispose equally well of the hard liquor racketeer.

In the words of Jouett Shouse, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment:

"Racketeering and crime must be suppressed . . . observance of the law must be made possible. Taxable revenues from liquor must go to the government, not to the bootlegger."

In order to clean up forever the whole racketeering mess that prohibition fostered, government—national, state and local—must be firm and honest, and every good citizen must back honest government up.

YOU can help. What are you going to do about it?

CRILE SAYS SUN GIVES US LIFE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 18.—(AP.)—Dr. George Crile, of Cleveland, described to a convention of surgeons yesterday a new concept of human life as electrical energy derived entirely from the rays of the sun.

The energy contained in food, Dr. Crile told the American Association for the Study of Goiter, is put there by the sun's action on the atoms of plants. He described atoms as solar systems, saying:

"Atoms are filled with solar radiance as so many coiled springs. These countless 'atomfuls' of energy are taken in as food.

"Once in use, these tense vehicles, the atoms, are discharged in our protoplasm, the radiance furnishing new chemical energy, new electric currents.

"Thus the new science of wave mechanics discloses the source of the unique power of animal protoplasm to generate electric currents."

TREASURE HUNT LANDS IN COURT

NORFOLK, Va., May 18.—(AP.)—The efforts of rival expeditions to wrest from Davy Jones Locker the rich treasure of the sunken liner Merida will be fought out in the courts instead of the ocean, 65 miles off the Virginia Capes.

The sunken liner, which went down 22 years ago, and the tug Salvor, flagship of the expedition headed by Capt. H. L. Bowdoin, of New York, were attached in a libel action for at least $15,000 filed in Federal Court yesterday by Capt. John Hall, Klass Everts and George a Redding, leaders in a rival treasure hunting group.

The action charged that the Hall expedition spent about two months in locating a wreck believed to be the Merida and were ready for actual salvage work when the Salvor "deliberately" sought to drag their ship, the Theresa and Dan, off the location, dragging one of her anchors and forcing her to return to port.

WONDERFULLY soft, smooth skin—this charm is every woman's birthright! For nature has given to skin of every type—to your skin, too—precious elements that keep it young, softly smooth.

Then why does skin grow dull and drab—old before its time? You've probably often wondered. And now scientists explain . . .

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Skin, science has found, contains certain precious elements. These elements, found in youthful skin of every type, keep it fresh, smooth, attractive, young . . . help guard it when exposed to wind, dust and sun.

The gradual loss of these elements is what makes skin get old looking, dry, rough, unattractive. But scientists give this welcome and all-important message—you can now check the loss of these precious elements.

This Soap actually contains Precious Elements found in skin itself

Now scientists attest the fact that Lux Toilet Soap, with its complete freedom from harshness, its ready solubility and its content of precious elements is an unquestionable aid in keeping the skin young looking . . . softly smooth.

Small wonder that Lux Toilet Soap is used by the screen stars, and has been for years. 686 of the 694 important Hollywood actresses are enthusiastic in their praise. And women everywhere have been proving for themselves that this fine soap actually keeps skin fresher—younger—more attractive.

The lovely screen stars must have radiant, youthful skin. Small wonder that this fragrant, white soap has been made the official soap in all the large film studios.

A Younger Looking YOU

SCIENCE tells you that pure, safe Lux Toilet Soap actually contains precious elements all skin must have to look youthful. These elements are found in the skin itself—an abundance in fresh, youthful skin, less in skin that is growing old, unlovely.

HOLLYWOOD has proved through years of daily use this soap actually keeps every type of skin younger looking.

MILLIONS of women (and men) everywhere confirm Hollywood's experience.

Won't YOU prove the beautifying effect this fragrant, white Lux Toilet Soap can have on your skin?

"I found out the secret of keeping my skin young looking," says Mrs. J. I. Potter, of Montclair, New Jersey

"I found out the secret of keeping my skin young looking—simply by using the same care for my skin that the Hollywood stars use . . . Lux Toilet Soap. I've been using this nice soap for a long time. From the very beginning my skin took on a new freshness and became wonderfully improved."

College Club Makes Good Showing in Its First Year in New Home

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

No doubt many College Club members will find themselves pleasantly surprised when they hear the yearly reports at the annual meeting on Saturday morning. In this, the first year in the new clubhouse, a year in which many other clubs the country over have gone into the red, or at least into "the pink," the College Club is finishing on the black side of the ledger with a net gain of 60 members.

And this has been achieved without holding the customary theater benefit, without increasing dues or fees and without assessing the membership. Moreover, the clubhouse which, when it was opened last fall, was expected only to be self-supporting, has been income-producing sufficiently to pay overhead and operating expenses.

And within the year $7,600 of bonded indebtedness has been retired, and the entire bond issue of $100,000 has been sold and paid for.

The bonds are held by 245 club members, 25 interested friends and some contractors who took bonds as part payment for work. The social committee, too, will show in its reports the most active year it has ever had.

The dancing classes have netted more than $300 profit. The bedrooms, which are rented to club members, have provided a stable source of revenue which has gone into house maintenance. The dining room, too, is included in the general profit-making.

EIGHT Chipso washings have not robbed this blue-and-white dimity print of its crisp new look.
"EVERYTHING WASHABLE—from a knitted sports costume to a printed smock is safe in Chipso. This red-and-white smock has been washed again and again."
TWO YEARS OLD is this sheer French voile embroidered in yellow and green French knots. Chipso kept it fresh first for Margaret, now for Eleanor Ann.
A DANGEROUS COMBINATION—dark blue and white, with red piping! But 16 Chipso tubbings have not made any of the colors run.
ELEANOR ANN CAHILL MARGARET CAHILL MRS. MARGARET CAHILL CAROL LOU CAHILL

"Try my method for keeping clothes nice"

says this clever young mother

How does a mother of three little girls manage to do all her own housework and washing—YET LOOK SO CAREFREE AND YOUNG?

Certainly she doesn't do it by hanging over a washboard—nor by spending long hours on patching and darning!

Not that little Margaret and Eleanor Ann and Carol Lou aren't dainty and fresh every day in their crisp printed and embroidered frocks! Mrs. Margaret Cahill, of Flushing, N. Y., has a recipe for laundering that saves her work and keeps the clothes new-looking.

She washes everything in CHIPSO. "I believe in soaking, rather than rubbing," she told us. "It makes the clothes last longer. Chipso's suds loosen dirt in no time. A few minutes' soaking . . . a quick squeeze through the billowy suds . . . a thorough rinse . . . and my washing is done. My white clothes are white as snow. My colored clothes don't fade. And I find Chipso safe even for my best silk underwear and our softest woolen things."

How can Chipso save the time and work of hard rubbing—yet be so SAFE? Because Chipso is not adulterated with the harsh substances contained in inferior soaps which gradually weaken fabrics and dull their color. Chipso loosens dirt harmlessly by RICHER SUDS. That is why Chipso-washed clothes stay new-looking for years.

Don't endanger the clothes you have spent good money for by washing them in cheap flakes or strong granulated soaps and powders. Get Chipso from your grocer in time for your next washday. At its low price, you will find Chipso the biggest value in rich, safe soap on the market today!

Chipso makes clothes wear longer

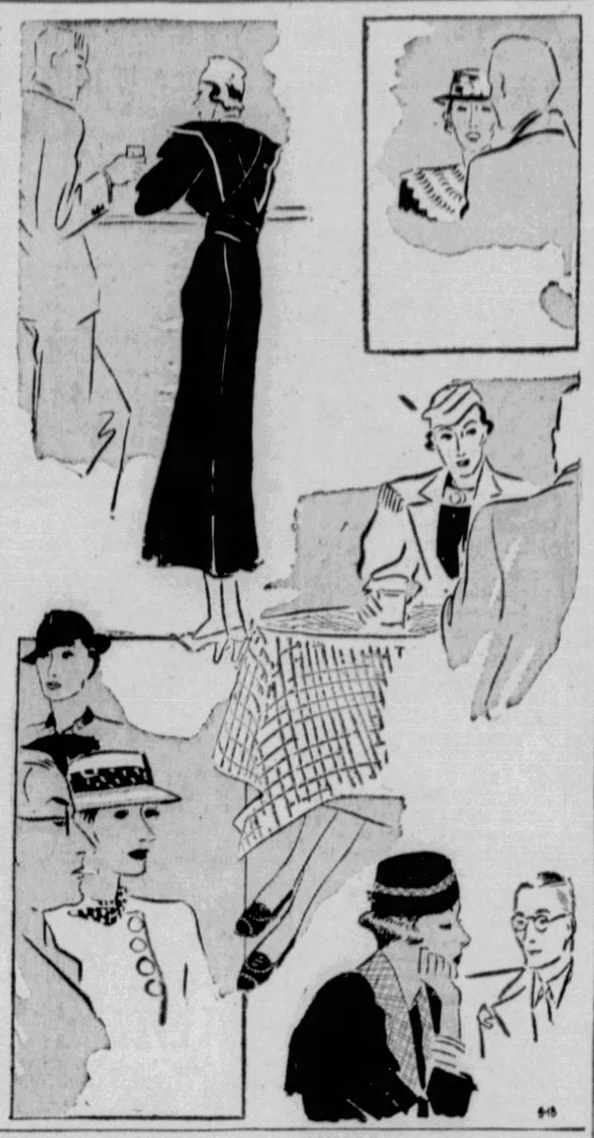
BEER BRINGS KALEIDOSCOPE OF GAYEST SPRING FASHIONS



BEER HAS a way of bringing out the gayest Spring clothes. These sketches were made in a smart New York beer-dispensary, where all the women were celebrating the new regime with their new clothes. The lady who drank hers standing up was wearing a black and white costume. Which proves again that you can't down black and white, especially when it's handled as this coat is, with "cracks" of white pique patterning it's thin wool fabric. She topped her wide shoulders with a hat as white as the foam on beer.

ANOTHER white hat, this one with a brim shading the eyes is shown in the lower lefthand corner. It's linen, of course, to match the linen duster coat, and it has a draped band of printed tie silk. It's amusing to see how straight it's set on the lady's head. The hat above it is also brimmed. But here the line swishes from low over one eye, to very high over the other. You pay your money and you take your choice.

NO PICTURE is complete these days without a dash of plaid. You see it everywhere. In the lower righthand corner it is used to band a hat and collar a black tuxedo coat. Just think how nice this looks over a checked table cloth! No wonder the young man is intrigued.

IN THE center is a glimpse of the town's most popular shoulders. They're wide enough to carry all the fashion responsibility of the otherwise plain grey flannelcoat. The shoes are attractive, broguish-looking pumps, cut high over the instep, with white kid showing through the perforations.

A HAPPY spot in the scene was the wide collar at the top on the right. This is one of the touches you can add to the plainest black or navy frocks, to give it just that lift which makes it this year's. The white is repeated in flower pompoms on a coquettish sailor.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

To Duke Ellington and His Orchestra

Play on, you jazzmen, who have found your themes
Within the broken patterns of my race;
Reweave the straggling threads of faded dreams
And build a syncopation in their place.
Capture your harshness from the calloused hand
Of redcaps waiting for the shuffling train;
Transpose their restless largo for your band
Into the blues; and send it forth again.

Take from my slavery its whip and lash
And synchronize your melody to seek
Its stress and accent in the frequent crash
Of auction hammer and a mother's shriek.

Retreat three centuries to where the stark
And naked tom tom split the jungle dark.

Jessie Carter.

Mizneriana

Hype Igoe recalled this one on the late Wilson Mizner. Hype told of the time Mizner married the widow Yerkes and her heavy coin.

There was the time, however, when the newlyweds were dwelling at the Waldorf-Astoria and Mrs. Yerkes in a temper banged Wilson across the face with a banded stack of fifty $1,000 bills. The sock was so terrific the paper band broke and the Gs scattered all over the floor.

"I was among the first down there with 'em, though," Mizner later explained to pals, "and I came away with seven 'skins' ($7,000) before I decided to get indignant?"

It Really Happened

Dave Vine, one of the Broadway boys who has influential friends, was motoring the other day and a traffic cop motioned him over to the curb.

As the cop wrote out the ticket, Vine mumbled:

"You're wasting a lotta time. I won't show up in court. I fix tickets."

"Oh, yeah?"

"Yeah!" flipped Vine.

"Well, then," was the patronizing reply as the officer dug two tickets out of his hip pocket, "do me a favor. Fix these for me!"

Instead of Their Ts

Broadway, says J. C., is better known as the place where they cross their friends even when they cross their hearts!

Study in Slanguage

A heavily saturated with Wyoming Ketchup Pete-man was doing a little chesty chatter before a group of novices in the same racket.

"Say," he began, "when I was in me prime I only done big tings. Only once't did I flooze it up. I was loaded with nose-paint caressing a box dat had more locks on it den Houdeenee! But I gave it too much soup—and blew 200 Gs into a lotta confetti, an' an exist for meself tru da ceilin'—an' before I knew it—I was chinnin' meself on da moon!"

Pete-man (safe-cracker).... Wyoming Ketchup (hooch).... Box (safe).... Soup (TNT).... 200 Gs ($200,000).... Nose-paint (pre-war.

The Retort Lovely

David Freedman, the author, was in a Broadway place the other sunrise with a group of pals. A columnist, whose hat doesn't fit, crashed the table.

The show-off, in the presence of genuine intelligence, began to dovetail philosophic lines in his conversation—that smacked of genius until Freedman couldn't stand it. So, as the columnist gabbed, Freedman interrupted now and then with: "That's Goethe's;" or "That's Shakespeare!" or "that's Hazlitt!"

The embarrassed newspaperman bit his lip and burned—until you could smell it. He finally exploded:

"You wouldn't like it much," he snarled, "if I made a monkey out of you in my column!"

"And," stifled Freedman, "that line is yours!"

New Game

Those indoor sports who are weary of cross-word puzzles, etc., might find Oliver Mackey's new game fascinating. The object is to use words of different meanings in place of a word or group of words in any popular song. Thus, "What is This Thing Called Love?" might become: Waters Taas Tinkled Loaf?"... "Loaf Lettuce Hindustan" is "Love Letters in the Sand."

Anyway, see if you can dope these: Loaf, Euphony Think!

Newspaperman Stuff

Sid Weiss, of the Yonkers Daily Record crew, forwards the one about the tabloid reporter who was fed up with living. Every time he was assigned to a story he'd pause in a speak for a few drinks, with the result that he was constantly being scooped.

One day in a melancholy mood he determined to end it all. So he sent a note to his managing editor explaining his plan to destroy himself, giving the exact hour and place. Here at last, he figured, would be an exclusive story for his paper. At least he could scoop the town on his own suicide!

But the fates decreed otherwise. The editor tossed the note to the floor. Drunk again, he mused, and promptly forgot about it. The next day, however, all the other gazettes front-paged the reporter's suicide. But there wasn't a line about it in his own sheet.

He had been scooped again.

Cortez On Sea For Ride to Hawaii

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, May 18.—When Ricardo Cortez left here Saturday night for Honolulu, he did it practically for the boat ride. After only two days in the islands, Ric will return here on the same ship to co-star with Claudette Colbert in "Torch Singer."

Those are the plans, anyway. With Rick's luck it doesn't pay to be too sure. Three times at least since January 1, Paramount has tried to get him into a picture. He was ill and missed one assignment. Later he had a relapse and work had to be postponed again.

Doctors say he is in good shape now and recommend the sea-voyage to Hawaii as the very thing to bring his strength back to normal.

"Torch Song" is a Grace Perkins story and Stuart Walker is going to direct it for the talking screen.

On his second day back in Hollywood, Alexander Kirkland called up Elissa Landi and asked her to go out dancing with him. The rest of the conversation went as follows:

"Sorry, but I'm going out of town."

"Where?"

"I won't tell you."

"Why?"

"Because you might decide to come along, and get me in headlines before I got home."

The Paramount studio still quivers with the excitement of Greta Garbo's unexpected visit. But the funniest story is about Jack Larue. When the mysterious Swede arrived, he happened to be standing nearby.

"Ye Gods!" he exclaimed. "There are a lot of people around here who look like Garbo."

By the time Greta had finished looking at "The Song of Songs," cameramen were posted at all exits and one leaned out the window of a third-story room. Director Rouben Mamoulin pulled a fast one, and sneaked his shy visitor out of the studio without a shutter having clicked.

All in a Day

All Around the Town

THE MEDICAL profession is none too prosperous these days. I know many doctors, and it seems to me that they are squawking considerably. The noted specialists are still doing well, of course, but the party is by no means what it once was. It goes without saying that there is just as much illness as ever, but a man has to be good and sick today before he summons the doctor. And when the doctor tries to collect his bills, then it's he who gets sick.

A little story that covers the situation beautifully took place in the office of a well-known physician the day before yesterday. A man, about 40 years of age and the father of two children, dropped into the doctor's office and said that he wanted his tonsils out. How much would it cost him?

The doctor knew the man very well. He had operated on his youngest child several years before, removing the child's tonsils without any hitch whatsoever.

"Let me see," mused the doctor. "My price for the child's tonsils was $75. Ordinarily, I charge an adult $100 for the same operation. But conditions being what they are, I will permit the fee to remain the same. The operation will cost you but $75."

The patient's eyes opened wide.

"Why, doctor," he cried, "that's nonsense! I can't afford to spend $75. I can't afford to spend anything like it. You seem to forget that conditions are very different from what they were. Your price is out of the question!"

The man seemed so excited about it that the doctor was puzzled.

"I'm sorry you feel that way about it," he asserted. "You asked the price and I gave it to you. How much do you think would be a fair price for the operation?"

The other chap shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, doc," he replied, "I'll tell you just how it is with me. I need my tonsils out and I have the utmost confidence in you. But money is scarce, and the most I can afford to pay is $10."

The medico smiled.

"I'm sorry, sir, but it would be impossible for me to work for any such price. If that's all you want to spend, why not run over to a clinic? I'm certain that they won't charge you more than $10 for the work."

The man reached into his pocket and fished out a card.

"To tell you the truth," he said, "I've already been to a clinic, and you're quite right. Their price is only $10, which is all that I want to spend. My card is all ready and I can go to the clinic any time.

"But the reason I'm here, doc, is because I want you to do it. I have confidence in you. Don't you see? I have the utmost confidence in you."

"That's very nice," the medico said. "I'm happy to hear you say it. But you can have confidence in the clinic, too. I assure you that the doctors you will find there are all very capable men."

The man waved a hand.

"You don't understand, doc," he explained. "I wasn't talking about doctors' merits at all. It's simply that I haven't got the $10 to pay the clinic. And if you do the work, I have confidence that you'll trust me for the fee!" . . .

"HE WAS a tall, bronzed fellow," writes Dave Murray. "Tiny wrinkles around his eyes showed that he had been out for long stretches of time in all kinds of weather. He had a tawny mane of straw-colored hair that had been bleached by sun, wind and rain. An adventurer, I thought. Perhaps a big game hunter or an explorer.

"So I got an introduction to him and soon brought up the question.

"'Who, me?' he replied. 'No, you got me wrong. I ain't no big game hunter or anything. I just been riding in rumble seats winter and summer for the past six years.'" . . .

AMONG THE death notices the other day was the name of Albert H. Perry, an actor. I knew Perry for years, and his passing brought to mind a story that I had never used.

Perry was a character. He was an expert actor in his day, and he had worked with some of our biggest stars in years gone by. With William Gillette, for example. And Mrs. Leslie Carter. And James K. Hackett. And Olga Nethersole. And many others.

His last Briadway role of any importance was in the Guild production of "Ned McCobb's Daughter." He couldn't get much stage work after that production folded. So he took to selling little knick-knacks and earning a living in any manner that presented itself.

No matter what he did, however, he was always the actor. He'd drop into my office every now and then, and sell me an order for some socks or some handkerchiefs. A man of 60, he still wore the actory coat with the fur collar and he talked as though every statement were a curtain line for a second act.

With him, this business of selling things was always "just a temporary sideline." Even as he displayed his wares he talked of the great role that would be his "next season."

"This is strange work for me, my dear Mr. Hellinger," he would say. "Strange work, indeed. But that is the way of all life, I suppose, and we must be thankful for any little favors in these times. I will probably return to the stage very shortly. I have a part under definite consideration and it is only a question of the management meeting my terms.

"You'll find these socks very durable, Mr. Hellinger. And only a dollar for three pair."

I liked Perry. He was really a great old character, and he never forgot that he had been a theatrical personage of note. Some 18 months ago, which was the last time I saw him, he rushed into my office and told me that he had secured a part. It was a wonderful part, he asserted, and he was going to give the performance of his life in the role.

I was happy for his sake. I asked him what the part was. And he drew himself up proudly.

"I am to be the Santa Claus," he enthused, "in Gimbel's toy department!"

"An old timer," observes Hugh Wedlock, Jr., "is a person who remembers the good old days when—if you had a college education—you could get at least an usher's job!" . . .

Jack Benny, the suave comic, was called upon to make a speech the other night. The spot was a crowded night club, and Jack took the floor without too much enthusiasm. But his opening remark was a wow.

"I'm happy to be here on this occasion," he said, "and I want to tell you, my friends, that this is a big day in my life. My wife and I have now been married exactly six years and one week."

He hesitated for a moment. He smiled and nodded.

"And would you believe it," he went on, "it doesn't seem a day more than six years!" . . .

CHURCH ALTERS STAND ON WAR

AKRON, O., May 18.—(AP.)—Declaring war "contrary to the spirit of Christ," the thirty-first quadrennial session of the General Conference of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ closed yesterday with the denomination committed to a greatly altered attitude toward the bearing of arms.

The new stand on war, supplanting that of 1929, declares:

"It is the conviction of many Christians that it is inconsistent for them as followers of Christ to participate in or sanction as a means of settling international disputes or controversies; God alone is lord of the conscience."

$200,000 FIRE IN BLOOMSBURG

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., May 18.—(INS.)—Seven firemen were overcome by smoke when fire destroyed the Hotel Magee Building in the heart of the Bloomsburg business district during the night. Outside telephone communication was cut off for five hours. Loss was estimated today at $200,000.

Firemen from Danville and Berwick, along with the Bloomsburg company, fought the flames for four hours before bringing them under control. The building housed a department store and the Magee Hotel.

The flames, originating in a small barn in the rear of the Bell Telephone Company plant, leaped across an 18-foot alley to the hotel building. Cables extending beyond the barn were melted by the heat. The hotel building is a four-story brick structure.

They punished cars and gasolines . . . to bring you better driving

YOU would have seen a strange sight, had you been in a certain part of the Allegheny Mountains last summer. A score of noted engineers . . . representing leading automobile and refining companies, a scientific society, a university . . . were there conducting some of the most grueling tests of cars and gasolines ever devised. ATLANTIC engineers participated. Since August, they have been carrying on the research themselves, utilizing the important discoveries which were made. They determined to produce a new and better motor fuel. And they have succeeded in developing a NEW WHITE FLASH which they sincerely believe to be better on every point than any product ever offered at or near its price!

So amazingly better it's winning the praise of thousands . . .

TRY IT AND SEE!

INTRODUCED just two weeks ago, the NEW ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is sweeping ahead into sensational popularity. Its success is being cited as one of today's most encouraging business signs.

Just two small words are contributing largely to that success. Those two words are: "Try it!"

Women are telling each other, "Try it!" Men are hailing their friends, "Try it!" Garage mechanics, truck drivers, bankers, civil engineers, shopkeepers . . . all are passing the message, "Try it!"

A fuel that sells itself upon a single trial must be good. The NEW ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is good. In fact, we sincerely believe it's better on every point than any fuel ever offered at or near its price. Try it and see!

NO ONE has to tell you that mental distress and nervous strain, overwork, colds, the "flu," sickness or a deficient diet weaken the body. You can feel it.

Now medical science attributes that tired-worn-out-let-down feeling to deficient hemo-glo-bin (skin and tissue purifier) in the blood—so necessary for carrying the vital oxygen from the lungs to all parts of the body—even to the skin—and in throwing off body poisons.

Even a sufficient and well balanced diet cannot properly nourish the body, unless the blood contains sufficient hemo-glo-bin.

Today tens of thousands take a course of S.S.S. Tonic once or twice a year to regain lost strength, restore the appetite and to clear up the skin.

PIE TRAYNOR SHINES FOR PIRATES

GIBSON FINDS NEW STARTING PITCHER

LOCAL FANS WHO have been wondering as to where the Pirates will get the needed additional starting pitcher when double-headers begin to crowd the schedule, can find the answer to their question in the great job of relief hurling that Hal Smith turned in to beat the Phillies yesterday after supplanting Larry French. Smith has looked promising ever since he shut out a patched-up Cub team last fall in his only start for the Bucs. That performance was not convincing, as the Bruins had won the pennant and were coasting in. But yesterday the big right-hander looked all over like the money, and put himself right in line for a starting assignment when he is needed.

Hal Smith

Before conceding a new hurler's fitness for starting duty, George Gibson likes to send him into a jam as a relief man and see him fight his way out of it. Smith's behavior under such conditions must have tickled the Pirate skipper. In the fourth inning, with second and third bases occupied and only one out, he made Hurst pop to Vaughan and got Whitney on a grounder to Traynor. In a similar situation in the ninth, he made Klein foul to Traynor and disposed of Hurst to end the game with the assistance of Piet's fine running catch of a short fly. It takes great pitching and a stout heart to keep hitters like Klein, Hurst and Whitney from pounding in runs with men on second and third. Smith retired the first 14 batters he faced, and in five and two-thirds innings gave only two hits and nary a walk.

When Hal went into the game, Joe Dawson, the aviator, who pitched with him in Kansas City last year, pronounced him one of the greatest hurlers he ever had seen at pitching to his spots—meaning rare control, or ability to put the ball where he wanted it to go. Smith more than bore out Dawson's words. The way he kept the Quaker sluggers from getting hold of the ball stamped him as an uncommon sharpshooter. He looks like a real pitcher.

PAUL WANER calls attention to a new angle that makes the showing of the Pirates to date all the more remarkable, and explains in some measure why they happened to bog down a bit in the last games of the Eastern trip, only to pick up again as soon as they hit the home grounds.

As Paul points out, before the Bucs got a chance to settle down in their own backyard last Monday they had been on the road for almost three solid months. They started for the coast training camp on February 19, and from that time until they opened their present stay they played only five games, not consecutive, at home. Pretty nearly a travel record. It was doing something to come back in a tie for first place on May 15 after all that jumping around.

BABE RUTH still carries in his wallet a newspaper clipping of the box score of the second game in the world series of 1916, in which, pitching for the Red Sox, he beat Sherrod Smith and the Dodgers in 14 innings, 2 to 1. Ruth was not scored on in the last 13 innings.

Babe takes a lot of pride in the fact that he is the only man participating in that game who still is playing ball in the majors. Otto Miller is a coach with the Dodgers, and Duffy Lewis holds a similar job with the Braves, but the rest have long since dropped out.

WHILE ON THE subject of pitching, Ruth told Frank Graham that those who say the new Cleveland park is a good one for the hurlers have altogether the wrong slant. As Babe puts it, the outfield is so big a club needs five outfielders. Three can't play the hitters, and any time the outfielders can't play the hitters it's going to be tough on the pitchers. Singles to right center or left center may roll into triples or homers when the field becomes baked. If the flychasers play the lines, the ball may be hit between them. If they play close together, the batter can hit down the lines. If a ball goes between two fielders it's a triple or a homer, and if it goes down the lines it's a double at least. The gardeners have to play so deep that Ruth predicts you won't hear of any runners being thrown out at the plate or on the bases from the outfield.

George Pipgras

THERE'S NO DOUBT that the Yankees helped the Boston American League club a lot by turning over George Pipgras and Bill Werber, but it was only a small payment on an old debt and they've got a long way to go yet before accounts will be squared. For it was the Boston club under Harry Frazee that started the Yanks on their rise to power with the sale of many stars.

The series of big cash deals reached the peak in the sale of Ruth following the season of 1919. Among the other high-powered players transferred from the Red Sox to the Yanks were Waite Hoyt, Herb Pennock, Ernie Shore, Joe Bush, Wally Schang, Everett Scott, Duffy Lewis and Mike McNally. Pipgras himself really belongs on the list, for he was under a Red Sox option with Charleston when the Yanks purchased him in 1922.

YOU MIGHT THINK that the average ball player would welcome a deal that shifted him from Cincinnati to a club like the Cardinals that has a chance to finish in the money, but, strangely enough, neither Leo Durocher nor John Ogden liked being moved to St. Louis.

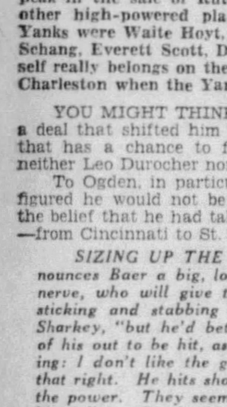
To Ogden, in particular it looked like a stroke of ill luck, as he figured he would not be kept by the Cards. To friends he confided the belief that he had taken part in the longest double play on record—from Cincinnati to St. Louis to Columbus.

SIZING UP THE Schmeling-Baer match, Jack Sharkey pronounces Baer a big, loose, happy-go-lucky fellow, with plenty of nerve, who will give the German a lot of fight. "Baer will be sticking and stabbing and proving troublesome generally," said Sharkey, "but he'd better not take chances on holding that chin of his out to be hit, as he usually does. I'll say this for Schmeling: I don't like the guy, but I'll have to admit he can hit with that right. He hits short. I'll be darned if I know where he gets the power. They seem like little, short jabs, but—well, when he hits fellows they buckle at the knees. The man who holds his chin out to him in crazy. I think Baer will not make that mistake."

DESPITE THE LOSS of two meets to West Virginia and Penn State, Carl Olsen, Panther track mentor, is proving himself an exceptional coach. Coming to Pitt when the number of track athletes enrolled was small; when the Pickards, Bowens, Welches, Wibecans, MacMurdos, Harrises, Quinns, Utterbacks, Knoblocks and Linns were missing, he has developed a pretty strong dual meet team.

And this in spite of the unexpected loss of four men who had been considered sure point winners. Death took Johnny Luch, a certain point winner in the shot, hammer and discus events. Sol Menaker, crack sophomore sprinter, and by far the best on the Pitt squad, suffered a spike wound during the West Virginia indoor games, and has not donned a track suit since.

IN ADDITION TO those losses, Joe Carver, a potential record-breaker in the discus throw, transferred to Grove City, and Lin Thiessen, ace hurdler, had to leave the team because of scholastic deficiencies.



Carl Olsen

Olsen, however, went to work at filling the gaps. He started by taking Johnny Clise, who for two years had been running far behind the others, and making him into a good two-miler, the best Pitt has had in a long time.

THE PANTHER COACH also developed Arvil Fleming, winner of the disputed 100-yard dash last Saturday, from a third-place low hurdler into a first-place sprinter. Jimmy Guay, Bill Albright and Freddie Kiger are others who had no high school athletic reputations, but who are earning points for the Blue and Gold. Besides, Olsen has Bill Keller, a fine prospect, running the half-mile as it has not been run around here for years, and predicts that the Harrisburg youth will be very much in the going in the I. C. 4-A meet at Cambridge next week. To support Keller in the 440, Olsen developed Kiger and Emmett McDonald, a couple of youngsters, kept the veteran Jim Watkins running around 50 seconds, and then took the four and made them into the district's greatest mile relay team, one that did the distance in 3:21.7 at the Penn Relays to win the championship.

SPORT BECOMES LEGAL AS VETO TIME EXPIRES

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 18.—(AP.)—Horse racing became legal in West Virginia today.

When hands of the State House clock moved past midnight the time limit expired in which Gov. Kump might have vetoed the racing bill, and it became a law without his signature.

A similar bill had been vetoed by the Governor during the regular session because of an error in its title.

Pari-mutuel systems of wagering are legalized under the racing measure, which is designed to raise revenue for operation of the schools. Its sponsors estimated that receipts will total well over half a million dollars.

Principal income will be from a levy of 3 per cent upon gross receipts of all the pari-mutuel systems. In addition, however, it carries provision for collection of a 5 per cent levy upon all winning tickets and a 10 per cent license fee for operators of pari-mutuels.

Senator Smith, author of the measure which was sponsored in the House by Delegate Doringer, said probabilities were slight that racing could be started before the latter part of this summer.

He pointed out that no tracks existed in the state, but added that plans were under discussion by Pittsburgh capitalists for construction of a track in the Northern Panhandle, where it would be readily accessible from the populous areas of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio.

CADDIE HEADS TO MEET

By TOM BIRKS

The Caddie Masters' Association of Western Pennsylvania will hold its annual meeting at the Churchill Valley Golf Club this evening. The principal item of business will be electing a new president to replace Bill Stocker, who has graduated from the ranks.

Stocker was elected president last year and since that time has replaced Jimmy Carroll as professional at Stanton Heights.

Last year, Alister Suter, of the Allegheny Country Club, served as vice president of the organization, and it is likely that the Sewickley Heights man will be elected to the presidency. Andy Petrolio, of Schenley Park, is the secretary-treasurer of the association.

A dinner will be served at 6 p. m. Edward McCoy, of the Longue Vue Country Club, prominent in the caddie welfare work, will be the honor guest.

Pete O'Hara held his third clinic of the season last night at the Guyasuta Golf Club. The Westmoreland wizard demonstrated pivoting and hitting through with iron clubs. The clinic was attended by a large crowd.

The Pitt intercollegiate golf tournament has been definitely set for the South Hills Country Club, June 12, 13 and 14. In addition to Pitt, Carnegie Tech, Duquesne University and West Virginia University will compete.

A dinner tomorrow night will precede the annual Spring Medal Day competition at Oakmont Saturday. The Wildwood Country Club will stage its postponed opening Saturday.

RIPLEY VIEWS DEVIL'S ISLAND

(Robert Ripley, cartoonist, who won fame with his "Believe It Or Not" drawings, is touring South America by airplane in search of new material. What he sees and hears and learns he is cabling daily to the United States.)

By ROBERT RIPLEY

(Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.)

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, May 18.—The first red streak of dawn found me exactly on the equator, over the mouth of the mighty Amazon River.

It was the first time I had been north of the equator since I flew across it over Lake Victoria, in Africa, over three months ago, and it was the only time that the Pan-American Airways plane loses sight of land on this 8,000-mile journey from Buenos Aires to New York.

We will appreciate the glory of a rainbow, but not until today did I experience the exquisite glory of sailing over, not only a circular rainbow, but a triple rainbow. In the center of these glorious colors was the shadow of my plane; then suddenly these glorious colors opened up and discolsed—what do you think?

Devil's Island! The famous "living death of French Guiana."

Believe it or not, I think that Devil's Island is one of the most beautiful islands I have ever seen, and I say this in spite of all the hookum writings of hokum authors.

Never at any one time during this island's history have there been more than 12 prisoners. At this moment there are six who have entire freedom.

Next came Parmaribo, in Dutch Guiana, a delightful place and worthy of the Dutch colonization system which is wtihout equal in the world. Surinam, as it is called, was once owned by the British who traded it to the Dutch for the island of Manhattan.

And now, believe it or not, after making a 1,446-mile hop and staying in the air 14 hours, I am in the land of the humming bird and rum swizzles.

I find them both delightful, believe it or not!

SPORT VIGNETTES

Jimmy Durante says the most ironic thing that ever happened to him was when he bet on Head Play in the Derby and lost by a nose.

Jockey Charley Kurtsinger got the mount on Head Play in the Preakness at 11 o'clock on the morning of the race when Jockey Robertson, who was to ride him, couldn't get away from Jamaica, where he had to ride Lynx Eye in the Youthful Stakes . . . Kurtsinger heard they were looking for a rider and went around and asked for the job, and he had a walkaway, while Robertson was beaten by a 50-to-1 shot . . . All Kurtsinger got for his afternoon's work was something like five grand . . . Pretty soft.

The wise ones are picking Young Corbett, III, the welterweight champion, to retain his title when he boxes Jimmy McLarnin in Los Angeles, May 29, because they say Baby Face Jim isn't so hot against southpaws . . . Corbett, by the way, is the sixteenth Italian to hold a world ring title, the others having been Johnny Wilson, Cannonball Martin, Rocky Kansas, Johnny Dundee, Joe Dundee, Steve (Kid) Sullivan, Sammy Mandell, Tony Canzoneri, Mike Ballerino, Battling Battalino, Tommy Paul (N. B. A. champion), Pete Herman, Frankie Genaro, Midget Wolgast and Fidel LaBarba.

They do say Jimmy McLarnin would have been a favorite with Herr Hitler because he has beaten so many Jewish fighters . . . He includes among his victims via the knockout route Benny Leonard, Al Singer, Ruby Goldstein, Jackie Fields, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Joey Sangor, Sid Terris and Joe Glick . . . Tommy Loughran revised his opinion of the outcome of the Max Baer-Max Schmelling fight after seeing the former work out at his Atlantic City quarters the other day . . . He says the good-looking Jewish heavyweight from California is a sucker for a left hand, swings like a gate and is too reckless about taking right hand punches on the chin . . . He thinks the methodical Schmeling will canter in with the victory.

Just to show you how some people take their work seriously, Dr. Jock Lauler, the well-known local tennisite, no sooner was reappointed on the junior development committee of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association than he got himself a fourth offspring and then, just to show his heart was with the kids, contracted himself a case of scarlet fever . . . Talk about dying for dear old Rutgers!—HARRY KECK.

TRACK COACH RESIGNS

FORT COLLINS, Col., May 18.—(AP.)—Coach George Scott, 44, of Fort Collins High School, whose track team has won three national championships and 19 state titles, has announced his resignation, effective at the end of the present school year, to become district manager of a business firm with headquarters here.

LOCAL HORSES SCORE WINS

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lewis A. Park, of Pittsburgh, and Jim Ryan, society rider, of Unionville, scored a double win at Rose Tree Hunt Club's spring racing meet yesterday, which was marred by numerous spills on soggy turf.

Seven paraded to the post in the Bayford Taylor plate, a 3½-mile cross-country test. Ryan got Mrs. Park's Kirkormac off to a good lead, pushed hard by Jack Skinner on Miss Jason, owned by J. W. Y. Martin, of Baltimore.

At one of the jumps, C. A. Da Costa's Algue fell, throwing his rider, Dan Barrows, who jumped clear, but another horse stepped on his shoulder, giving him a painful injury.

Kirkormac won, with E. B. Smith, Jr's., Exford, with Sid Hirst up, nosing out the tiring Miss Jason for the place.

COCHRANS SET FOR OPENER

The sandlotters have been exhibiting splendid ability to "take it" from the knockout punches launched by the weatherman so far this season, and chief among those who have been beset with disappointment after disappointment is young Ottie Cochran and entry in the City League. The Cochrans have been attempting for two weeks to get their home opener off the slate, and after two unsuccessful attempts tonight hopes to pry off the lid by meeting the Gillespies.

Councilmen Harry Little and C. B. Connelley will be on hand to participate in the ceremonies attendant to the inaugural, Henry Blum, well known Pittsburgh sports figure, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Whitaker also has its home opener scheduled for this evening and will meet the crack Homewood nine in the inaugural. Dutch Ackerman and Leo Mackey have been working hard to whip the Whitaker entry in shape for a gruelling race.

In the third City League contest on the slate, the North Siders take on the champion Book nine, meeting at Olympia Park.

The Parmelee Club, of the East End section of the Greater Pittsburgh circuit, makes its home debut this evening, facing the Millikens, of Wilkinsburg, the defending champions.

In last night's City loop frays, Dormont defeated the Cochrans, 8 to 4, at Dormont.

The Pittsburgh Crawfords had an easy time in beating McKeesport winning 12 to 0 behind the airtight, four-hit pitching of Streeter. The Homestead Grays, however, were defeated by the crack Nashville nine, 3 to 1.

Promoters Must Heed 5-Day Rule

Local boxing clubs were warned at a meeting in the office of the State Boxing Commission today that signed contracts for main bout boxers must be in the hands of the commissioner at least five days in advance of any bout or the local club will default its night for the week.

The action to enforce the five-day rule was taken to prevent clubs from advertising bouts which they do not have, to keep other clubs from closing with star boxers and then pulling out, leaving the fans holding the bag. The five-day rule will apply to substitutes as well.

John T. Hernon represented Hickey Park at the meeting. Joe Mazer was on hand for the North Braddock Bowl, Tom Higgins for Greenlee Field, and Gilbert Kinderman for the Arena.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

In the welter of outstanding events surrounding our Pirates, it is possible that one of the main contributions to the first-place drive of the Buccaneers is underestimated. The reference is to the sparkling consistency of Capt. Pie Traynor's bat.

Members of the Pittsburgh club and the slab stars of the enemy teams have no lack of appreciation of Traynor's worth in the present race. Pie is the talk of the league on account of his timely batting, the concensus of opinion being that the greyhound third baseman is having the best year of his honorable career.

Traynor's contemporaries have good arguments to back their contention that Traynor, at 33, is better than ever, with the likelihood he should remain a top-notcher for many seasons to come. Here is the gist of one opinion:

PIE LIKE GOOD GOLFER

"Pie is just as fast as ever, his long experience has given him a chance to know the sport from all angles, he hustles just as much as he ever did and he has evolved a style at the plate which should be recommended to most batters."

Traynor's batting style is something to please a golfer who strives to improve his game—Pie does not "press;" in other words he does not overswing.

The truth of this argument is seen in the batting averages. Traynor has clicked with 39 hits in this early campaign and there have been no homers and only one triple. His nine doubles for the most part have been line drives and his collection of singles were similar hits that were stopped by outfielders.

There was a time when Traynor would overswing like many other hitters, but he has found that a well-timed swing will make more hits and drive in more tallies, which is the main thing in a nine-man combination.

SMITH SLAB STAR

Hal Smith, Kansas City slab graduate, was the toast of the Pirates today as a result of a rescue act Hal staged yesterday to win for the Pirates. Smith rushed out to salvage a contest which had got out of the hands of Larry French in the fourth round. Hal retired 14 batters in succession

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Well, folks, it took a lot of rain and darn little fertilizer to bring up the swellest crop of doubleheaders we've had in years. I was looking over the book of parlayed dates and us ball players might as well be circus acrobats from the way we'll play two shows a day from now on.

Nick Altrock

The weather sure played hemlock with that first month's schedule. During April when a well-dressed team set out for the ball park it was wearing ulsters, raincoats, rubber boots, snowshoes, umbrellas and lightning rods. Only Rockefeller and Morg. saved enough jack to see them through the rainy days we ran into this year.

However, we are all in the same boat, as the parrot said to Noah. A doubleheader is a doubleheader whether you are heading the league or guarding it from the rear. My only hope is that they don't resurrect night baseball and put on tripleheaders.

DODGERS HIT STRIDE, TAKE THIRD PLACE

NINTH INNING RALLIES MARK CLUB'S RISE

Associated Press.

The Brooklyn Dodgers have found the going rather rough in the National League campaign, particularly when everybody was getting good pitching and their batters weren't able to hit their stride, but with the clouting department coming into its own again they are showing signs of becoming a serious threat to the pace setters.

In three games, the Dodgers have risen from a rather weak fifth in the standing to third place. All three victories were won with "story book" ninth-inning rallies of the most exciting order.

Sunday Hack Wilson started this unusual string of victories with a pinch home run with the bases full in the ninth inning that beat the Phillies. Opening in St. Louis Tuesday, Brooklyn came through with two runs in the ninth to beat the Cards, 6-5, and yesterday they put over three runs in a startling last-frame rally for a 5-2 triumph that moved them into third place and shoved the Cardinals down into a tie for fourth with Cincinnati.

HEIMACH INJURED

The only painful part of the victory was that Fred Heimach, starting hurler, sprained an ankle when his spikes caught on the slab in the fifth inning.

Cincinnati, which had been as high as third place, dropped back to the .500 mark and a tie with the Cards when Ed Brandt pitched the Boston Braves to an 8-0 victory. He gave the Reds only three hits while the Braves blasted out 13, including Wally Berger's eighth homer of the season.

The second place Giants and the Chicago Cubs were idle, preparing for a doubleheader today when the Cubs plan to hoist the 1932 pennant.

NATS BEAT TRIBE

The Washington-Cleveland battle for second place again furnished the excitement for the American League, although they returned to orthodox baseball after Tuesday's wild exhibition. The Senators copped the coveted place with a 3-2 victory, pounding Wes Ferrell effectively.

The New York Yankees retained their slender lead with a 4-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers. Lefty Gomez pitched six-hit ball for the champions, but tossed away a shutout with a wild throw after Ray Hayworth had tripled in the eighth.

The Chicago White Sox, with three former Philadelphia players appearing for the first time in Shibe Park in their new uniforms, blasted Rube Walberg and Jim Peterson from the hill with five runs in the eighth inning and walloped the Athletics, 5 to 2.

RED SOX WIN

The not-so-humble Boston Red Sox, paced by Dale Alexander, cut loose against the St. Louis Browns and won, 7 to 3, for George Pipgras, who made his first start for Boston. Pipgras gave only eight hits while Alexander came out of a batting slump to clout three straight.

The day's third injury came when Sam West, of St. Louis, was hit by a thrown ball when Alexander was trying for a double play and suffered a face injury that will keep him out several days.

Enid Wilson Wins British Golf Title

GLENEAGLES, Scotland, May 18.—(AP.)—Enid Wilson today won her third successive British women's golf championship as she defeated Diana Plumpton in the 36-hole final match, 5 and 4.

DENBIGH, North Wales, May 18.—(AP.)—C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, the Canadian who holds the United States amateur golf title, and who is to compete in the British amateur and open championships, will come here for preliminary practice, it was learned today.

JOHN R. HEARST MAKES AWARD TO N. Y. U.

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 18.—John Randolph Hearst, son of William Randolph Hearst, yesterday presented the National Hearst trophy and the Hearst Eastern Section cup to the rifle team of New York University.

The ceremony was a feature of the fifteenth annual field day of New York University at Ohio Field and was witnessed by 5,000 persons.

The National Hearst trophy, which is in perpetual competition, is a large silver shield. The Eastern Section cup, which must be won three times by one university before it can be retired, was captured in 1930 by North Dakota Agricultural College, in 1931 by Ohio State University and in 1932 by the University of Washington. No team so far has won it more than once.

New York University's rifle team, which disposed of all comers this year, was composed of Saul Cohen, Charles A. Barnett, Jr., F. Eyolf Bronner, John W. Rundt and Arthur B. Stitt. It was trained by Sergt. Fred Wallace, of the Regular Army, who is on detached duty as head of the R. O. T. C. at the University.

The trophies were presented by Mr. Hearst to Dean Archibald Bouton, who represented Chancellor Elmer E. Brown. Earlier, Mr. Hearst, Dean Bouton and Sergt. Wallace reviewed the regimental parade of the R. O. T. C., and watched the field day events, which included a sham battle, an exhibition drill, calisthenics and an equipment race.

U. S., CANADA CLASH IN DAVIS CUP TEST

CANUCKS DENY DISSENTION ON TEAM

MONTREAL, May 18.—(AP.)—Worried more about the weather than by the strength of the opposition, the United States Davis Cup team was ready today for its second big step along the route to the challenge round at Paris in July, the North American zone final against Canada.

The first two singles matches, sending Ellsworth Vines against the young Canadian, Gilbert Nunns, and Wilmer Allison against Dr. Jack Wright, leader of the Dominion forces, were scheduled for today, starting at 2 p. m., eastern standard time.

Tomorrow the doubles match will pit George Lott and John Van Ryn against a still unnamed Canadian team and Saturday the singles order will be reversed for the closing matches, Vines meeting Wright and Allison playing Nunns.

The winner will meet Argentina, winner of the South American zone tests, at Washington next week for the right to play the survivor of the European zone competition in the interzone finals at Paris. The United States is favored to sweep through without much trouble.

Vines, who has played little tennis since the end of his Australian tour in February, appeared to be in good shape.

Canadian officials were inclined to minimize yesterday's rumors of dissention in the team because of their refusal to give the veteran Rainville another test match against Nunns for the second singles berth. Upon his arrival here yesterday, Garnet Meldrum, non-playing captain of the Canadian team, said Nunns had fairly earned the place, first through his victory in the test at Hot Springs then through his fine play against Cuba.

TRAYNOR STARS FOR BUCS

and the poor Phillies sustained their third straight setback at the hands of the Buccos. The score was 6 to 4.

The Quakers had enough runners on the sacks to put them in front and only one was out when Smith reached the scene. He stopped the scoring and did not permit a hit until the ninth, when the Phils made two singles. Tony Piet brought the contest to a close with a fine running catch of Hurst's fly as the tying run streaked toward the plate.

John Berly, the Phils' starting pitcher, fractured his right leg in sliding into the plate in the third inning. Berly was rushed to his clubhouse and later taken to St. John's Hospital, where he will be under the care of the Pirate physician. Phil Collins finished on the slab. The Buccos scored three runs in the first round and two more in the third to sew up the game. French permitted four tallies in the third when the Quakers hit nearly everything he threw up.

TRADE SCHOOL TITLE MEET ON TODAY

By JULIUS LEVIN

The third annual track and field championship of the Pittsburgh trade schools was up for settlement at the Schenley High School field this afternoon. The meet originally was scheduled for last Thursday, but was postponed because of rain and wet grounds.

The trade schools are competing for the first time for the Fintex trophy. This trophy must be won three times to become permanent property.

Somers was the winner in 1931 with 91 points, while Connelley Trade School won the meet last year with 98 points.

The meet is being held in conjunction with the Section II novice meet at the same field. All told, four novice affairs will be run off this afternoon on four different fields. The program and the list of contestants for the novice meets follow:

Section I—Allderdice, Baxter, Gladstone, Liberty, Peabody and Westinghouse, Westinghouse High field.

Section II—Arsenal, Connelley, Fifth Avenue, Herron Hill, Schenley, Somers and Washington Trade, Schenley High field.

Section III—Allegheny, Allegheny Vocational, Latimer, Oliver and Perry, Oliver High field.

Section IV—Carrick, Knoxville, Langley, Overbrook, Prospect, South and South Hills, Langley High field.

The Section II championship of the grade schools will be run off at Westinghouse High field. The Section I meet of the same competition will be staged tomorrow at Schenley High field.

A busy day is scheduled for the grade school baseball teams this afternoon. Brashear plays at Spring Lane, West Liberty at Beechwood, Lee at Brookline, Stevens at Obey, Bell at Fairywood, Troy Hill at McNaugher, Logan at Holmes, Forbes at Frick, Garfield at Fort Pitt, Morningside at Rogers and Fulton at Lemington.

The W. P. I. A. L. will hold a regular meet in the Fifth Avenue High School Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The decisions committee will meet at 9 o'clock. The W. P. I. A. L. will vote on the membership applications of Brentwood, Shaler Township and South Huntington.

LICHTENSTEIN, SANKOVITCH AT ARENA

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

While the Wesley Ramey-Harry Dublinsky main bout naturally is a standout, there are two boxers in the preliminaries of Lew Raymond's boxing show at the Arena tomorrow night who will come in for a goodly share of attention from the fans.

M. Lichtenstein

One is Abe Meyer Lichtenstein, Rochester (N. Y.) middleweight, who boxed Ted Yarosz in a windup in the same ring last fall and has been in against Jackie Fields and other big stars in Rochester and other cities. He is a tall, rangy Jewish youth, who got his start in Baltimore, the cradle of so many good fighters, including Joe Gans, Kid Williams, Andy and George Chaney and Joe and Vince Dundee.

Lichtenstein was not in the best of condition following a layoff when he met Yarosz, but he put up a good fight, nevertheless, and showed a dangerous right hand. He says he will be in much better trim for his setto tomorrow night against Red Bruce, local Negro middleweight, in the semi-final.

LOCAL HEAVY PERFORMS

The other boxer who will hold the interest of the fans is Mike Sankovitch, of Canonsburg, who went to New York a few years ago and did rather well for himself, but returned here several months ago, and has been fighting himself back in condition meeting heavies in surrounding towns. He hopes to fight himself up to main bout estate for the outdoor season.

Ramey and Lichtenstein will engage in their final light workouts at the Pittsburgh Lyceum this afternoon. Dublinsky arrived from Chicago this morning and attended the Pirates' game at Forbes Field this afternoon to see his friend, Freddie Lindstrom, play.

Meanwhile the patrons of sock are looking ahead to the opening of the outdoor season at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Monday night, when Ted Yarosz, Monaca welterweight, who has lost only one bout in his entire professional career, and that one of four meetings with Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, meets Tommy Freeman, of Cleveland, former welterweight champion of the world, in the 10-round main bout, with Johnny Chiodo boxing Patsy Severo in the eight-round semi-final.

BOWL READY TO OPEN

Jules Beck, matchmaker at the North Braddock Bowl, announces his organization has arranged for its new bond and promoting license, and is going ahead with plans to open Wednesday night of next week. He has several main bouts in view, and expects to close for one of them today.

Greenlee Field is going slow about its arrangements for the outdoor season, and may not open on June 1, as planned, but hold back and see how the other clubs in the crowded field fare. The Arena expects to continue in operation in its North Side quarters all summer, staging weekly shows with cooling arrangements to make the fans forget they are sitting indoors. Matchmaker Lew Raymond already has announced the switching of the Vince Dundee-Frankie Goosby bout to the Arena for June 8, and also is figuring on using the winner of his Ramey-Dublinsky bout with the winner of the return bout between Tony Herrera and Tracey Cox, scheduled at Hickey Park one week from next Monday.

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Former National Amateur and Open Golf Champion.

Most of us see some of the leading players perform what appears to be miracles and because of a certain measure of pride within ourselves, we feel that perhaps we can do the same. Such things as trying the impossible appeals to the speculative nature of every golfer whereas if he could play his golf with more conservatism I am certain he would do a better job in scoring.

Francis Ouimet

I can recall my own experience as a youngster in schoolboy golf, particularly in the first championship in which I played, back in 1908. My physical makeup was such that I could not wield clubs with the power of some of the larger boys and consequently I suffered tremendously in the matter of length on the tee shots. However, in spite of this discrepancy, I did manage to reach the final round, where my opponent was a young lad who could hit the ball many, many yards beyond my best efforts. However, my experience gained in earlier rounds enabled me to forget the herculean efforts of my opponent, and I spent the most of a long, hot day in merely driving the ball down the fairways toward the hole and let him capture whatever honors there were for long driving.

PLAY WITHIN SELF

The accurate hitting more than offset my lack of distance and in the end I happened to beat my powerful young rival. The most valuable lesson I gained out of that match was the one of playing within myself.

On two or three occasions, I had an opportunity of stretching a brassie shot and possibly reaching the green. There was so much trouble around the hole that I decided to play with more safety, and, consequently, I would pick a club that would keep me on the line and yet free from trouble. In each instance, I won the hole, and on two of the holes I actually beat par by a stroke thanks to getting down in one putt.

This lesson which I learned as a youngster is one that the average golfer could well afford to follow. Every golfer, I don't care who it is, can do so much and no more. Sarazen and Guilford can hit a ball 260 and 275 yards, but, whatever their limit is, they cannot do more. The average player might do a consistent 200-yard drive, as a regular thing, but because every once in a while he hits one 20 yards further he cannot think that the 220 yards he gets once is his driving tange.

LONGEST DRIVE NO GAUGE

Unfortunately, all of us pick our best and longest drive or our lowest score to gauge our game by, and, in this respect, we make a most serious error. I had this very idea brought most forcibly to my mind only a few days ago. In a friendly four-ball match, one individual who normally hits a very nice ball as a rule was playing with some chaps who were noted for their long driving. The short hitter of the trio was influenced no little by the distance gained by the young giants, and, of course, he had to turn himself inside out, or at least he thought he had to, to keep up with them.

The net result of his efforts was a miserable stretch of tee shot hitting that had him out of bounds, in traps, in the rough and every other place because he was just trying too hard for distance. There is no doubt in my mind that he would have made a far lower score if he had just set out to do what he knew he could do without trying to tuck in that extra 20 yards. He spoiled his whole game and ran up his score to a much higher level than he had ever reached before.

Fortunately, the person I have in mind has learned his lesson of trying to do too much, and today he is satisfied that he cannot get home on holes measuring 480 yards in two shots and consequently plays his driver and brassie well within himself, and the funny part of it is he manages to get down in one putt once in a while and still never takes more than 5 for the hole.

DUKES ENGAGE TECH NETTERS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Weather permitting—and our local prognosticator's fingers appear to be crossed on the subject—Grant Siverd's Dukes will strive to retain status in the thick of the chase for the city college court crown by battling Carnegie Tech on the latter's lot this afternoon. Inasmuch as the Bluffites and Tartans have already skirmished to a tie on the Hilltop, and as the Plaid yesterday lost to Dr. Billy McEllroy's Pitt outfit, a setback for either outfit in today's contest will amount to elimination from the title competition.

Meanwhile Wash-Jeff continues its Eastern invasion by opposing Georgetown at Washington today and George Washington University, also in the capital, on the morrow. Another interesting Friday session brings the crack Grove City crew to Geneva.

Announcement from P. T. A. headquarters late yesterday has it that the 1933 expansion program of the net body will get actively under way on Saturday as a troupe composed probably of Dr. John O'Loughlin, Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, Bob Lampus and Paul Sullivan jaunts to Vandergrift for an exhibition affair on the newly surfaced public rectangles of the Kiski Valley center.

P. T. A. President J. Phillips Davis has likewise announced that the committee in charge of the revival of the Allegheny County Championships at the Westinghouse Club several weeks hence will be headed by W. J. (Bill) Clardy, veteran Electric leader.

The Allegheny classic seems now a certainty for the week-end of Independence Day, the Greensburg Country Club having relinquished these dates.

Billy O'Loughlin's 6-8, 6-2, 6-1 decision over Hartig, registered high spot yesterday as Pitt blanked Tech, 9-0. The Panthers' sweep of six singles jousts not only supplied great surprise, but assured victory early for the Blue and Gold.

In the freshman meet, the Panther Cubs defeated the Tech Plebes, 7 matches to 2.

PETRIN BEATS RENAULT

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 18.—(AP.)—Don Petrin, of North Arlington, N. J., 176, last night won an easy eight-round decision over Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, 215.

KNIGHTSTIE WITH DAYTON FOR LEAD

Beckley's Black Knights forged into a tie with Dayton for the lead in the Mid-Atlantic League yesterday, turning on the power to crush Wheeling, 12 to 5. The Knights slugged Jablonski for 17 safe hits.

The Dayton entry, meanwhile was losing a 10-inning struggle with Zanesville, 6 to 5, after having an early lead fade away.

Johnstown nosed out Charleston, 5 to 4, in a battle at Charleston and at Huntington, Springfield defeated the Boosters, 6 to 4, with a two-run rally in the ninth inning.

PREXIES BLANKED

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 18.—(AP.)—Navy's tennis team had no trouble dealing Washington and Jefferson her yesterday, 9 to 0. After making a clean sweep of the singles matches in straight sets, the second string doubles teams completed the rout by taking their three matches with ease.

PROFIT-TAKING CHECKS STOCK ADVANCE

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP.)—The stock market refused to follow the leadership of the rails in a further advance today and turned somewhat reactionary after midday.

The list made fair progress for a time in the morning, but encountered considerable selling, as utilities turned heavy. An early gain in cotton futures of around 50 cents a bale was converted into losses of nearly as much, and wheat sagged fractionally.

Rails showed pronounced strength for a time, with gains of 1 to 3 points in Santa Fe, Union Pacific, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific, Delaware and Hudson and others.

The resistance which the share market has encountered as it has approached the peak levels of last week evidently prompted considerable profit-taking. While trade news remained fairly favorable, some commission houses pointed out that the advance had been abnormally prolonged without the interruption of a substantial technical reaction.

The strength of can stocks was accompanied by news ticker reports of increased business. The federal public works measure was said by some brokerage quarters to have prompted some interest in cement issues. It was pointed out, however, that beneficial results of the works projects might well spread over many lines of business. Proposals for increased taxation to carry the project attracted keen interest.

Some financial quarters pointed out again that the continuance of the recent financial and business improvement must depend upon increased employment and purchasing power. Therefore, the April figures released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics attracted attention. Employment in manufacturing industries increased in that month 1.6 per cent and payrolls 4.5 per cent.

WHEAT WEAK, OFF AT CLOSE

CHICAGO, May 18.—Active selling which developed from eastern sources that earlier were on the buying side, led to sharp setbacks in wheat prices late today.

Wheat tumbles carried corn downward, too, although corn showed stubborn resistance. Reports indicated a favorable outlook for the new domestic crop of spring wheat, with seeding now practically completed.

Wheat closed weak, 1½ to 2 cents under yesterday's finish, corn ⅛ to ¾ down, oats ¼ to ½ off, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to an equal gain.

Republic to Test Iron Mine Taxes

DULUTH, Minn., May 18.—(AP.)—The Republic Steel Corporation, one of the largest of the independent mining companies in St. Louis County, will withhold payment of $92,424, the last half of the 1932 taxes, in order to contest the validity of the taxable valuation of its mineral properties, it was announced today.

This action followed announcement earlier this week that the Oliver Iron Mining Company, largest taxpayer in the state, would withhold payment of approximately $5,000,000, last half of its 1932 taxes.

African Mine Tax Increase Looming

CAPETOWN, May 18.—According to the Pretoria correspondent of the Die Burger, the newly-elected South African Coalition Government intends in its next budget to take in taxation of £7,000,000 to £8,000,000 out of the £17,000,000 profits which have been made by the gold mines as a result of the abandonment of the gold standard by the union of South Africa.

URGES AGAINST RUSHING TO BUY STOCKS

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, N. Y. University

NEW YORK, May 18.—Suppose that we grant, for the sake of argument, that somehow or other commodity prices are to be forced back up to 1926 levels, and that business is to have a corresponding inflationary boom.

Suppose that we further grant that stock prices would, in that event, sell up a good deal higher.

My question is, would it be reasonable to suppose that the market would, in two or three weeks, jump the whole distance? It seems to me that if the assumptions of my more bullish friends are correct, there is still plenty of room for nice profits. And by waiting for the test of this move, you have the advantage of being able to get more light on the soundness of the forces which are at work.

LONG ROAD AHEAD

Say we have missed this train. If the train service is as good as you think, there are going to be plenty of other trains. If we have really turned the corner, we have plenty of road ahead of us.

You see, what is really in the minds of those who lament not having bought stocks, is the fear that the move may be over! If it is, the thing is not soundly based, and lower prices will be seen. If it isn't, there will be plenty more.

And one should not be so sure that he would have picked a winner. Suppose you had bought Standard Gas and Electric, which has just passed the dividend on its preferred stock. Just note that three such wheel horses as Steel, American Can and American Tobacco have made no progress in two weeks.

Now, it is just ordinary market sense to await a reaction. I know that the longer one waits, the harder it seems. But one reason why there has yet been no good reaction is that so many people couldn't wait and stepped in on little dips.

APPEARS TIRED

Yesterday the market certainly acted tired, despite the soaring quotations for T. and U. A. F. Symptoms of distribution were again apparent.

Few competent market observers would now be surprised at a good sized break at any time.

This is a "psychological" market. All news is good news in such a market. Stocks go up when the dollar is weak. They also go up when it is strong. They go up on war news and on peace news. That is all right while the game lasts. Nothing, however, can react faster than a state of mind.

You should bear in mind the fact that the market has for weeks now been full of "pools." Personally, I think some of them are finding increased difficulty in getting a following. Whenever they find this to be true, they will fold up and some stocks which they have been running would then "act sick."

So watch your step.

MANIPULATION

I am not fundamentally bearish. I recognize that the action of the market since last summer has been susceptible to the interpretation that the corner of the bear market has been turned.

But frankly I have not liked this "inflation" ballyhoo as a basis for investment buying. We do not even know for sure that we are going to have real inflation, and if the dollar should jump back to par, as it could at any time, what would happen?

If the market had been going up on earnings prospects, and discounting reasonably foreseeable improvement in business demand and supply, I would have been strong for it. As it is, there has been too much manipulation.

I want to see the whites of old man inflation's eyes before I shoot.

BUSINESS

Gains Continue to Add To Confidence In Future.

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE ACCELERATED expansion in business activity during recent weeks has been responsible for a marked change in the general attitude toward the future.

When the current expansion was starting the most frequently asked question was:

"How long will it last?"

There had been so many brief spurts which were followed by further recession that any expanding tendency was viewed with suspicion.

But the improvement which we are experiencing at present is running beyond the time when business normally shows seasonal expansion. For the first time since the late month of 1929, activity in some individual industries has exceeded the level of the corresponding period of the previous year.

We are not asking so often the question:

"How long will it last?"

A brave prophet would be needed to answer the question, but there is a more general belief that we are on the road to genuine improvement and that the recent gains do not represent a mere flash in the pan.

Gain Reaching All Lines of Activity

AT FIRST GAINS appeared to be confined to a few lines such as automobiles and steel. This left room for doubt that the improvement would be lasting. More recently, however, the expansion has reached practically every line of industrial endeavor.

The wide range of the current improvement can be seen readily by a cursory glance over any financial publication or over the financial pages of any daily paper.

Yesterday's crop of business news leads included the following:

"The shoe industry is one of the brightest spots in the St. Louis district, with all large companies working near capacity to care for the sudden rush of orders."

Rayon Industry Reaches Capacity

ANOTHER SIGN of manufacturing expansion was:

"The rayon industry is again operating at 100 per cent of capacity as a result of the flood of buying orders growing out of the spring upturn in business. Nearly all of the important producers are sold up for several months."

A further indication of improvement appears in the following:

"Sharply increased sales during the current quarter have restored profitable operations to the Chrysler Corporation and in such a decisive manner as to indicate a profit for the first six months this year."

The above straws showing that the wind is blowing toward better times, appeared on a single page of an outstanding financial paper. On the same page the following heads appeared:

"Detroit Plants Hire More Men."
"Republic Fires Furnace."
"Royal Shipments Up 50 Per Cent."
"Chicago and Northwestern Traffic Up 7.2 Per Cent."
"Goodyear Adds 200 More Men."
"National Cash Register Sales Up 50 Per Cent."

The improvement is no longer isolated in any single section of the country or in any particular group of industries. It has become nation-wide and its velocity has become so great that its force is not likely to spend itself in a short period of time.

By MARGARET MATCHES

AUDACIOUS GIRL REVEALS SECRETS OF SOUTHERN SEAS

CHAPTER III.

I leaned on my elbows, happily taking everything in. The returning D. O. (District Officer) at my side viewed the lovely scene dispassionately as he lighted a cigaret. "They call the volcano 'The Mother,'" he volunteered. Then he nodded at the low-lying flat island in mid-channel. "That's Vulcan Island; it rose from the sea bottom during the last great eruption." Farther on toward the wharf, also blocking the entrance, reared two great coral rocks, the Bee Hives, all that remained of an island submerged in the same blow-off. "Scientists warn," continued the D. O., "that another eruption of The Mother is about due."

It was still early morning when we pulled alongside the bridge at Malaguna wharf; not yet nine o'clock, but already the seasoned islanders were drenched in perspiration and only the foolhardy went without hats or helmets. No one who has not lived the cut-off existence of tropic stations can appreciate what Boat Day means in the routine of life out there. Men in white helmets and white ducks waited in carnival mood. Women, shaded by great Japanese parasols, watched eagerly for some returning figure. Everywhere swarmed chocolate-colored natives, clothed solely in gay red laplaps, crimson hibiscus flowers in their wooly hair or stuck behind their ears—an irrepressibly noisy crowd. Native girls and women, also in laplaps, with the wretched addition of gaudy, loose blouses covering the upper part of their bodies, stood back of the crowd giggling together. The minute the ship was made fast, plank runways were laid from hold to wharf and a steady stream of shouting, laughing kanakas began unloading cargo. For even there time is precious to steamship companies.

Summary

Alone and lost to the world, Margaret Matches leaves New York on what proves to be one of the most amazing and hazardous journeys ever attempted by a white woman.

Today she tells of her trip from Sydney, Australia, to Rabaul, where, on a small island, the roads of the world cross. She also tells of her experiences among the savages of New Guinea and the Admiralty Islands, of her strange contacts with curious people in far-away places and of many other instances during the course of her fascinating trek through a savage paradise.

GOES TO CHINATOWN

Rabaul boasts three hotels. One is "European," the others are in Chinatown. The European Hotel is set far back from the road on Casuarina avenue, a great bungalow affair, built on the prescribed six-foot piles, with overhanging eaves, lattices sheltering the large veranda, and punkas waving lazily overhead. But there was no room for me at the hotel; planters, government employes, and gold-rushers to and from Salamaua and Edie Creek filled it to twice its capacity.

This sent me, not at all unwillingly, to Ah Chee's great barn of a hotel at the corner of Chinatown. And it was just as well; for, though the European Hotel is more elegant than Chinatown, occasionally the nights are disturbed there by over-indulgent gentlemen going into D.T.'s. This happened only once within my experience at my hotel. It's a good hotel, Ah Chee's. It sits at the crossroads where Chinatown and white Rabaul meet. You enter a great double doorway, 20 feet high, direct from the road, into a cement-floored hall. A bar greets you on your right, and swinging half-doors on your left open into a large dining room. On the walls hang framed lithographs advertising German beer and two or three beautiful engravings of classic paintings—beauty mixed indiscriminately with the shoddiness that is to be found all over the islands. A wide stairway winds to the bare, clean sleeping rooms above, where each room opens out on a gallery veranda. After weeks on ships, I looked gratefully about me at my large room. Its meager furnishings included a bed enveloped in a voluminous mosquito net, a wash-stand, two chairs, and a huge Teutonic wardrobe. This last was firmly hooked to the three-quarter-high wall, so that it wouldn't tumble over on the bed during an earthquake.

SENSE OF VALUES

It is curious what knocking around the world a bit will do to your high-flown sense of values. Gradually, for weeks, I had been deleting from my life things that I had once considered essentials.

I think the prime affectation of civilization is a well-equipped bathroom. There in Rabaul I had to revise my notions of the bath entirely. In New Guinea, to begin with, it is no longer a bathroom, but a house-wash-wash. At Ah Chee's this was situated some little distance around a hallway from my room. It was a roughly boarded enclosure, its cemented floor sloping toward a drain in the middle. Overhead, suspended from a rope like a gibbet, hung a large galvanized can with holes punched in the bottom. This was cunningly arranged so that when it was filled with water and you stood under it, your pull on a dangling end of rope released a trickle of water.

You must have your own personal servant in Rabaul, even at the hotel; otherwise you will fare badly. And boys are hard to get, while to get a mary is almost impossible. Luck stalked me; one of the German boarders, observing my servantless plight for a few days, gave me two of his own boys. They slept outside my doors, killed stray cockroaches within my domain, made my room spotless, and kept my clothes washed and ironed. To be sure, I promptly caught kuskus (ringworm) from one of them, but brown salve quickly cured that.

MISTRUSTED AT FIRST

At Ah Chee's my fingers were on the very pulse of the South Pacific, for it is there that the true islanders congregate. Also boarding there were half a dozen Germans, a small remnant of the empire-builders who had lost their land when the colony was given over to Australia to govern. I liked them, and after they had ceased to mistrust me as a spy on their movements they were very kind to me. It is they who helped to wrest that beautiful and verdant place from the jungle. When they were beginning to reap the generous harvest of their superhuman efforts, the upset of the war came. Those who are yet holding on are doubtless hoping for fuller restitution as time goes by.

Oddly enough, the natives seem to have preferred the iron rule of the Germans to the more lenient one of the Australians. The new government forbids a white man to strike a native, no matter what the offense. The penalty is a heavy fine or imprisonment, or both. Unfortunately, there are only two things that a kanaka dreads in the way of punishment; one is physical pain, the other humiliation before his kind. The old German paddle system inflicted both at once, with no material harm to the offending native. Now, particularly in the outlying stations where official justice would be long in coming, and where a white man must deal swiftly with misdemeanors, it has been discovered that a length of rubber hose inflicts effective, harmless chastisement, but leaves no telltale marks.

ONE OTHER AMERICAN

In addition to the Germans at Ah Chee's, there were transients—recruiters, gold prospectors, occasional skippers of schooners, and a Chinese merchant with his little slant-eyed son. There was also Yank Colvin from Kentucky, the only other American in Rabaul at the time I arrived. He was tall, thin, weather-beaten, his shrewd eyes and nasal drawl more suggestive of New England than of the genial South. At his heels always trailed a nondescript black dog with eyes full of unfathomable love for her master.

Yank introduced himself to me one day as we met along the dusty road leading to Chinatown. He had been in New Guinea several years prospecting for gold, but was now on the trail of diamonds. At the moment and rather profanely he was cooling his heels in Rabaul, awaiting his trial for having threatened natives. It had happened that, in the remote hinterland of New Guinea mainland, another white man became ill with black-water fever. There was only one thing to do—get him to the Coast. So the Kentuckian started back through the heartbreaking jungle with carriers bearing the sick man. It was hostile country, and the natives mutinied. Yank drove them at the point of his revolver; they made the coast and the sick Australian lived. But the carriers complained that he had threatened them, and he was brought back to Rabaul for trial. At the time I met him, he would gladly have cut the throats of all Australians—even the one he had saved. His trial dragged on for three months. He was acquitted.

CARELESSNESS KILLS (Problems of Democracy)

The firearm has been a boon to mankind. So has the motor vehicle. Neither when properly handled is dangerous. It is man, who has yet to master his creations, who makes motor vehicles and firearms dangerous by improper handling. In 1930 there were 3,243 people accidentally killed by firearms and 32,550 by automobiles, a ratio of 1 to 10.

THE FIRST LANDING OF COLUMBUS IN THE NEW WORLD

The "Geographical Renaissance" was the revival of exploration, inspired through the 'Crusaders' stories of the luxuries in the Orient, through developments such as the marine compass, larger ships, and the need of markets. Columbus is looked upon as the discoverer of America (1492.) After him Cortes conquered Mexico, Balboa discovered the Pacific Ocean, De Sota reached the Mississippi river, Hudson sailed into the river named after him. (Book of Knowledge). (World's History).

HOW THE VIKINGS CAME TO AMERICA FIVE HUNDRED YEARS BEFORE COLUMBUS

Norsemen, or Northmen (from Norway, Sweden, Denmark,) had discovered Greenland before 1000 A. D., according to old manuscripts. Colonists settled there and learned about the country in the west. They made excursions to Nova Scotia or New Foundland, which they called Markland (Woodland), for timber. (Book of Knowledge.) (World's History.)

SULPHURIC ACID MANUFACTURE (Contact process)

Sulphur or pyrites is burned, forming SO2. This is cooled, freed from dust, washed, dried, purified from arsen by passing it over shelves with ferric oxide, mixed with air, heated and admitted through the contact tower which contains pulverized platinum on trays. The SO2 burns here to SO3, which with the spray of conc. sulphuric acid forms the "fuming" acid H2S2O7. With water, sulphuric acid is obtained: $H_2S_2O_7 + H_2O = 2H_2SO_4$. SOME OF OUR MOST IMPORTANT CEREALS (Food)

Left to right: Barley, which grows well in colder regions. It lacks gluten, so little bread is made from it. When barley sprouts the starch becomes maltose, used in making beer. Corn, which adapts itself to colder climates and grows in ten weeks. It contains much starch and oil. Oats, which has a branching head with the ears hanging down. It also grows in colder countries. Its worst enemy is the "smut," a fungus that turns the head into black powder. (Book of Knowledge).

SECTIONAL VIEW OF A STEAMER (Transportation)

The steam is generated in the fire tube (or water tube) boilers by coal or oil fire. As the stack is short, it has not enough draft, hence a fan forces air into the ashpit (forced draft) or delivers the gases by suction into the stack (induced draft.) The engine is vertical, marine, condenser type. Its shaft is coupled to the propeller shaft. The thrust bearing transfers the push of the propeller to the ship's steel frame. A dynamo supplying current for electric lights, pumps and cranes are driven by separate steam engines. (MacNaughton: Steam Power Engineering.)

Let's Classify Objections

We realize that a difference of opinion is what makes hosses race even though the hoss is entitled to no opinion.

But, we can never understand the diversity of opinion in laws affecting the weal and welfare of the nation.

If a thing is good for the country why should the vote be divided 57 to 43? Why shouldn't it be as unanimous as beer at a picnic?

Can the 43 representatives of the people claim they are acting for the good of the public and the man in the street?

One recent bill should have been dotted on the line by every legislator in the works. It was rational, beneficial, corrective, constructive and essential. If you can think of any more adjectives you win the turkey.

Yet, 13 solons, of all the old mossbacked, corner solon type, voted against it.

Those boys should have been taken out in back of the barn and spanked with papa's butter paddle. We scanned the reasons advanced for and against the measure and we could find none against. It was for the good of the states and the glory of the colonies.

It proves that, no matter what you are trying to do, anywhere, any place and any time, you are sure to find a beetle-browed spectator agin you.

If you stoop to remove a splinter or a thorn from a dog's paw, if you assist an old lady across a busy street, if you bring a smile to the face of a weeping child, there will be some swaybacked reactionary leap from the crowd and holler, "I object."

Why he objects you know not. Neither does the crowd. Neither does he. But he has been resenting things all his life, and, like a cow going around a hill, he knows no other road.

There will come a time when a man must state the nature, cause and reasons for his objections or get his whiskers bobbed. But, at the present, anybody with voted credentials can toss monkey wrenches left, right and center.

And if a weatherbeaten objector's opinion is what makes hoss races we will ride a bicycle.

Election Laws Defective

Legislators Must Be Chosen Who Will Co-Operate in the Effort to Prevent Fraud.

The Allegheny County Bar Association's committee on election frauds reported two years ago that it saw no hope for permanent betterment of conditions until legislation was obtained curing the obvious deficiencies in the present law.

Senator Frank J. Harris asked the Allegheny County delegation to the General Assembly to promise co-operation in the movement for honest elections. But at the instigation of Senator James J. Coyne the delegation refused to promise.

Senator Harris proceeded, nevertheless, to introduce and push election reform bills. One of the bills of the highest importance, providing for permanent registration, was passed. But Senator Harris reports that without his knowledge it was so amended in the House that it is less desirable than the law which it is to supersede. He accordingly asks Gov. Gifford Pinchot to veto it.

We are glad to learn that a committee is now at work to determine who was responsible for the amendments, and promises to make the result of its investigation public.

There is nothing left to do, of course, but to renew the struggle.

Legislators must be sent to Harrisburg who will co-operate in the effort to stop election cheating.

Not in Competition

The Physicians Justly Resent the Bootleggers' Suggestion That They Are Now Trade Rivals.

Physicians recently were given the right to prescribe liquor for medicinal use in any quantities that they may think their patients require.

Certain bootleggers said they would reduce their prices to meet this new competition.

The bootleggers' insinuation that the doctors, under the new freedom, would prove trade rivals was an insult and falsehood which the doctors justly resent.

If there are any persons who were misled into believing that it would be an easy matter now to obtain liquor for beverage purposes through physicians, they will find disillusionment in the Allegheny County Medical Society's statement that no whisky prescriptions will be issued except for medicinal use, and in the improbable event that any member of the society should misuse his privilege he will be disciplined.

An Ounce of Prevention

An Arrest at Indiana, Pa., Brings the Old Proverb to Mind.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

We are reminded of the old proverb by the report of the arrest at Indiana, Pa., of a man who was found in possession of two bombs.

We often hear of bombings, but seldom of arrests in connection with them, and very rarely indeed of arrests prior to the commission of the proposed outrages.

In holding the man for court in $10,000 bond proper appreciation has been shown of the gravity of the alleged offense.

An Unwise Beer Policy

Beaver County Is Making a Mistake in Adding $100 to The Cost of a License.

When persons desiring to sell beer apply to the County Treasurer of Beaver County for a license, the suggestion is made that they should have a lawyer's help in preparing the application.

The Beaver County lawyers have decided to charge $100 for such assistance.

By thus virtually adding $100 to the already high cost of a license the Beaver County authorities are depriving small dealers of the right to sell beer and concentrating the business in the hands of large dealers who will specialize in beer and make every effort to sell enormous quantities.

Better let beer be sold at soda fountains, refreshment stands and restaurants, where people will drink it in moderation, than give the business exclusively to saloons, where there will be fewer restraints on intemperance.

Applicants for beer licenses in other counties do not require the aid of a lawyer in preparing their applications. The Legislature directed the county treasurers, instead of the courts, to issue the licenses, so that it would be unnecessary to hire a lawyer.

From every standpoint the Beaver County policy has a bad look.

Farmer Co-operatives

It Is to the Agriculturists' Advantage to Join in Selling and Buying.

The Department of Agriculture at Harrisburg issues some interesting figures on the co-operative movement among Pennsylvania farmers. It is to the farmers' advantage to co-operate, and it is gratifying to learn that the movement has not been retarded by the economic stress of the past year.

At the close of 1932 the number of Pennsylvania farmers holding membership in agricultural co-operative societies was 54,410, which was 2,026 more than at the close of 1931.

Our farmer co-operatives did $30,836,619 worth of business through their societies last year. While this was a considerable falling off from the figures of the year before, there was little or no decline in the volume of tonnage of the products handled.

Both in selling and buying it is profitable for the farmers to co-operate.

A Precedent Broken

The Taxpayers Have Been Saved Some Money by Gov. Pinchot's Independence of Tradition.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot is like President Franklin D. Roosevelt in not being afraid to depart from tradition if he thinks it advantageous to do so.

It has been customary to print the proceedings of the Electoral College of Pennsylvania in a handsome manner and present each member with a copy bound in leather, with his name stamped in gold on the front cover.

With Gov. Pinchot's approval the proceedings were mimeographed this year at a total cost of $10.55, a saving of $186.25 when compared with the $196.80 paid for printing and binding the proceedings of the 1929 session.

It was worth while to break that precedent.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 18.—Life among the rich in fashionable suburban Long Island is no longer a hectic swirl of lawn fetes, fox chases, country club teas and dances.

There is a pronounced lassitude. The business is to pass the time. When the flux of gaiety so suddenly clogged three years ago many did not seem able to move out of arrested attitudes. They were caught in a scum of despair. But now they are adjusted—if not particularly happy.

Large estates regimented with a half hundred servants have been shucked to two or three. Big houses are shuttered and many owners now occupy the quarters of lodgekeepers. Housewives go to the village themselves to market in station wagons. And cook the meals.

Indeed several large estates are without even phone connections. Queer neighbors appear all around. Many enormous country places have been rented to the bourgeoisie for as little as $250 a month. In such calamities the exrich turn to wit. Jesters in sackcloth!

During the tedium of a dull play the other evening I ticked off the bald-heads in the first three rows. Out of 34 men, 19 were noticably skimpy. And one suggested the proverbial billiard ball. To me there's something forceful about a shiny, well-shaped pate. And that reminds me the most becomingly bald persons I know are the newspapermen, Karl Bickel and Karl Kitchen. * * *

The most unusual freak of baldness was that of Viscount Cecil as viewed from an upper lodge in a London theater. There was a slight brush of hair at each temple. Then a strand that ran up to the side part and on the other side of the part a perfect spit curl. Just about the size of a thumb. * * *

There is little doubt the heaviest head of hair, not even excepting the gigantic shock of Sid Grauman, is that of Jay C. Flippen, the monologist. It is a crazy tangle a foot long on top, the despair of barbers, and may be only combed by a special brush of wire bristle. The locks of Will Hays, Jr., are so thick strands have to be nipped out so they will lay smoothly. The most perfectly trained hair is of the prematurely silvered Brooklyn Brummel, Harry Silvey. If mussed, he merely shakes his head and it falls into a precise middle part, the lucky stiff. * * *

Thingumabobs: Robert W. Chambers, the author, is an authority on butterflies and Chinese rugs . . . Lindley Murray, former national tennis champion, now that he is a chemical engineer, is a golf fan . . . Elsa Maxwell wasn't able to show Hollywood anything new about giving parties . . . And Coco Chanel is pouting over Miss Maxwell's magazine portrait of her . . . The Prince of Wales' favorite dog is the Cairn . . . Marlene Deitrich, in spite of masculine garb, knocks folk down with feminine perfume . . . The lamp shades in Lillian Harvey's dressing room are fringed with ermine tails . . . Frances Marion, highest paid scenarist, has received $1,500 per broadcast for singing over the radio. * * *

America's foremost magazine illustrator, Dean Cornwell, returns to the field he quitted after doing the vast murals for the Los Angeles public library. This was a labor of love, requiring five years of intense application in London and Los Angeles and sacrificing a $75,000 a year income for one of $10,000. Cornwell, born in Louisville, Ky., does not suggest the painter of popular fancy—a striding Augustus John with smock, long hair, beard and pipe. He is a thin-waisted, blond young man, with a wisp of mustache, suggesting a toff smack off Picadilly, who smokes cigarets without inhaling. * * *

I never pass the now gloomy old Hudson theater without recalling a thwarted theatrical career. During a jobless stretch a press agent arranged for me to be a juror in a court scene. In the excitement of the first night I did not notice my fellow jurors until in the box. Then I found myself, by unhappy chance, next to a man I owed $15. When we filed out for a verdict I kept right on going.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

This isn't for happy married people. It's for the lonely legion of the divorced.

Yes, I know; we don't seem to need comfort. We talk so smartly; we refer so gaily to our "ex's." But deep in our hearts we feel neither smart nor gay.

Maybe it was our own fault, after all. But how did it start? God knows, we didn't want to make a mess of marriage. For all our brave patter, inwardly we were little better than frightened, homesick children, reaching desperately for a hand to hold to in the dark. And yet—we dropped the hand. And now we're all alone. But—why?

Was it because we expected the wrong things of marriage? Did we come to it with such cock-eyed notions of bliss, gathered from maudlin movies and feeble-minded fiction, that we couldn't recognize happiness when we saw it? Or were we unable to adapt ourselves to plain, practical human companionship? Would we have done better if we had seen marriage as our fathers saw it—as a grim but glorious partnership on a hard but holy trail? I wonder.

And I think of that oldest, loveliest of all love covenants—the young Ruth's cry to old Naomi, who would have sent her away. There they stood, those two, on the edge of the desert—homeless, friendless and poor—bewildered girl and heart-broken woman. No rosy illusions for them! Already life had mauled and robbed them. One thing only they possessed, but that was beyond all price—they had love.

Love? What could it mean to them? It could not by any possibility make life easy. It could not open a way of escape from hardship or danger. But it could make life radiant within. That was enough!

So, out of her sad knowledge and selfless devotion, Ruth made her immortal cry. And often, reading it, I have wondered if we would make a better business of marriage if we took Ruth's words for our vow—those words that so bravely face the certainty of hazard as well as the hope of happiness.

"ENTREAT ME NOT TO LEAVE THEE, NOR TO RETURN FROM FOLLOWING AFTER THEE; FOR WHITHER THOU GOEST I WILL GO, AND WHERE THOU LODGEST I WILL LODGE.

"THY PEOPLE SHALL BE MY PEOPLE, AND THY GOD, MY GOD:

"WHERE THOU DIEST, WILL I DIE, AND THERE I WILL BE BURIED. THE LORD DO SO TO ME, AND MORE ALSO, IF AUGHT BUT DEATH PART THEE AND ME."

If, in our most solemn hour we should promise that—

If, standing there, we should see, beyond the rose wreaths, the desert's dreary sands, and all the fear and foolishness and pain that lie ahead—

And know, to the last tear, the price that love would cost; yet, knowing, felt that love was worth whatever it might cost—

Then, with this all before us, we took each other's hands and said—

"WHITHER THOU GOEST—IN MIND OR BODY OR SPIRIT—THERE WILL I GO, BELOVED!"

If we'd taken the vow like that—would we be so lonely now?

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Heaven

As a little child it seemed
Heaven was very far away,
Just a place of which I dreamed,
Golden as a summer day,
Sweet with angel choirs and bright
With the light of God's own face;
White wings stirring, day and night,
But a strange and distant place!

Now I know that I was wrong
In the picture which I made
Of that heaven, sweet with song,
Where the light of glory played.
Now I know that I can clasp
Heaven in my outstretched hand,
All its joys within my grasp,
All its peace at my command.
Not one hate the days reveal,
Not one shadow of a fear;
Ah, what blessed bliss to feel
Heaven is so very near!

And They Possess Deep Reverence.

BURNING INCENSE FOR HIS DEAD FRIENDS

Somebody said: "Tell me what company you keep, and I shall tell you what you ARE." You might say: "Tell me what are the strongest emotions in the life of a people, and I shall tell you what that people amounts to."

These two pictures show that Japan possesses deep religious feeling, and that reverence for courage, patriotism, devotion to country, dominate the national life.

To this, undoubtedly, may be attributed Japan's many victories.

Like ourselves, she has never, thus far, been defeated.

The upper picture shows an old Japanese officer, Admiral Viscount Nakoto Saito. He is Prime Minister of Japan, and officially wears European clothing, as soldiers of Japan wear uniforms of European type.

But while his clothing is European, the heart of this old Japanese gentleman is thoroughly JAPANESE. You see him here, kneeling and burning incense, in the Zojojl Buddhist Temple in Tokio, in memory of his friend, the late Baron Kenjiro Den, who was Governor General of Formosa.

Viscount Nakoto Saito, thoroughly modern in commercial, diplomatic and military ideas, has done much in his long career to keep Japan abreast of the times, and to push her ahead. But deep in his mind there is the old Japanese religious feeling, and when his good friend of many years dies, he kneels in public, with the priests of his religion looking on, and burns incense in sad memory of the friend departed.

REVERENCE FOR THE BRAVE DEAD

The second picture shows, standing in front, Vice Admiral Osami Nagani, representing the navy of Japan at the Geneva conference. Immediately upon his return to Tokio he appears with his suite before the Yasukuni Shrine, built to honor the dead, dedicated to the souls of soldiers and sailors that have died fighting for Japan.

It is real reverence that causes this eminent Japanese and the three members of his suite bareheaded to bow so deeply. You cannot mistake the reverence in their attitude.

That reverence comes from love of country, and IT MEANS EVERYTHING TO JAPAN.

The Japanese are kind to their children, never beat them. That is a sign of high civilization. They revere their parents, work for them, and care for them, when it is necessary.

They revere their Emperor, are earnest in their religion, and thoroughly courageous in defense of their country.

That might not suit the young English gentlemen of Oxford and Cambridge that recently, by a large vote, decided "never, under any circumstances, to fight for king and country." But the Japanese attitude is a better one for the future safety of Japan.
